If you go up on the eastern part of Mobile County into Washington County, at the end of that part of my district that's Clarke County, you have U.S. 43. And along U.S. 43, you have a number of steel plants, chemical plants, a power generating plant for Alabama Power Company, and some other manufacturing concerns. Q And you've said that a lot of people from these outlying counties come into Mobile County to work. What are some of the major employers in the Mobile area? A The largest single private sector employer is Austal shipyard that's located on the water front in Mobile. It employs 4,000 direct employees and about another 1,000 contract employees. Then you have Airbus, which has not only an assembly line there for the A320 and soon the A220. They have an engineering facility there. And out there by the Mobile Airport an actual facility that services the military. You have, as I said, three steel mills there in Mobile County, a number of chemical companies. The University of South Alabama is a major employer. The Mitchell Cancer Center is there, as is the University of South Alabama Medical Center, another major employer. And then, of course, the Port of Mobile and interests related to the port are major employers. Christina K. A Virtually all of them do both in and out. Sometimes with the chemical companies they have other things substances are coming from other places that is brought into their facility. They do whatever their process is to turn it into something else, and then it goes right back out again. So it's not unusual and same is true for the steel companies and for some of the other manufacturing concerns. For example, the for Airbus, you have a number of parts and large parts of the jet that come in by barge or large ocean going ship and they go to a special port there, and then they are trucked back over to the Airbus facility. So the port is critically important to the manufacturing concerns all over my district. Q Would it be fair to say, Congressman, that the health of the economies of the entirety of your first district is linked to the health of the port system? A Very much so. A Well, the biggest is Mardi Gras. We like to tell the people in New Orleans that we have the first Mardi Gras. They don't like that, but it's the truth. And that Mardi Gras has always bound that area together. And in some of the towns outside of Mobile County, they've actually started their own little Mardi Gras parades there that are very fun to go to. I think everybody understands that's kind of a way of expressing our joy of life. We like to have fun. We like to eat. We like to go to parades. We like to spend time with one another. Our Mardi Gras is very family oriented. You have families who for generations have been coming into Mobile for Mardi Gras so they can partake of that. THE COURT: And moon pies. Q Are those things that Congressman Roby is known for focusing on as she represents the second district? A Oh, yeah. She's got Fort Rucker, a major army helicopter base kind of in the center of her district. So Fort Rucker is important to her. She has Maxwell Air Force Base up there in Montgomery. Obviously very important to her. Maxwell Air Force Base does a lot of different things, but a lot of it is training and education. She's got very important agricultural interests in her district cotton, peanuts, cattle primarily. She's got a university in the center of her district, Troy University. That's a regional university that also has an international reach even having campuses in southeast Asia and China. She also has the University of Troy in Montgomery, Auburn University in Montgomery, and Alabama State University. So she's got four different universities that she works with. There are also some other specialty businesses in her district. Great Southern Wood Preserving, which we all know as YellaWood, is located in Abbeville in her district. It's the largest treated lumber company in the world. And there is a plastic recycling business in Troy that's the largest in the world. And then you have a number of defense-related businesses both around Fort Rucker and around Troy University itself,	1 shipyard or that I don't know about her military bases. We 2 both do, and we work with one another. But she's the leader 3 over there, with regard to Rucker and Maxwell. I follow her 4 lead. I'm the leader with regard to the shipyard in my area. 5 She follows my lead, as others do. 6 And so we're able to separate our areas of expertise, 7 strengthen ourselves. And by complimenting one another, 8 Alabama actually punches above its weight. If you look at how 9 many members we have in our seniority, we get far more for the 10:57:28 10 buck than most states do. 11 Q Right now, looking at the current borders of the first 12 district, do you find that this area's connected enough to make 13 it easier for you to focus on a narrow set of issues? 14 A Yes, sir. I can tell you I meet once a year with 10:57:48 15 economic developers, once a year with our superintendents of 16 education, once a year with our higher ed leadership, once a 17 year in various ways with local elected leadership so that 18 and it's compact enough that I can do that. I can get to even the furthest part of my district 13 fairly easily. So from my perspective, that sort of 24 compactness of the district gives me the ability to focus on

It takes a long time to get rom far west Mobile County to get to Dothan over there in the outheastern part of Houston County. And then if you go up to Henry County where Abbeville is, ou would be even further because you would have to go over interstate 10, come up through Dothan, then go even further forth. That's not to say if that was my district I wouldn't do it. Of course, I would do it. But because of the geographic distance there, I would not be able to do as much. So in the past six years, I've done over 130 town halls in its different localities in my district. I would not be able to do that many town halls nor reach that many localities if that were my district. Are there communities of interest that unite southwest dobile County with Houston and Henry counties? I can't think of any. Okay. Do they have any common industry? There is some agriculture in southwest Mobile County. Some of it's common to Houston County, et cetera. But some of Christina K. Q It connects would you agree that it includes the more urban parts of Mobile? A It does. It also includes some of the less-populated parts of the northern part of Mobile County, as well. Q And then it goes to connect those areas of Mobile County with Montgomery, Macon, and Bullock County. Are there strong connections between urban Mobile and Macon, Bullock, and Montgomery counties? A As far as I know, there are no connections. Q Does anyone from Montgomery, Macon, or Bullock County come to Mobile to work? A Not that I 've ever known of. That'd be a pretty far commute. It would be a long commute. Q Do they get their media from Mobile? A No. They get their media from Montgomery. Q Are there communities of interest that you're aware of that bind that bind urban Mobile County with Lowndes, Montgomery, Macon, and Bullock County? A Not that I know of. I've never known of any sort of cross-fertilization, in terms of what we're doing economically. I've worked with people in those counties. Q Sure. A But not on things that have anything in common with what Christina K. Decker, RMR, CRR Federal Official Court Reporter

When I ran the two-year college system in Alabama, we did the education and workforce training inside Alabama state penitentiaries. And so I saw the benefit of some of the things they were trying to do in there. But I was concerned the bill went too far in providing some leniency to people who were involved in significant drug trades and people involved in violent crime. And I didn't think I would be representing my constituency, who by the way, strongly supported me in that if I had voted for that bill. Every congressman has to go through that calculus when you vote for a bill because you are always going to have people in your district that will disagree. That's okay. I just don't know enough about the election returns to be able to respond to it. Q And in certain predominantly white areas of the city of Mobile, Mr. Stimpson received upwards of 90 percent of the white vote. Are you aware of that? A I'm not. I don't know how you break it down that way because the city's becoming so integrated. So I don't know how you would be able to tell which was a white vote, which was a black vote. Q And I mean well, if that's the case, would that would that suggest to you that that the city has really moved that far towards the admittedly ideal of one One Christina K. A I've never heard of that before. But I see African-Americans after sundown all over Baldwin County doing all sorts of things working, going to school activities, participating in, you know, various entertainment and social events. So anybody that feels that way doesn't know Baldwin County. Q So if a constituent of yours testified in court under oath that she feels uncomfortable and has been harassed in Baldwin County after sundown, you would question whether that constituent A No, no, no. I'm not going to question somebody's individual experience. I wasn't there with them, so I don't know whether it was or wasn't. But I would say that is certainly not a practice. And if anybody's done that in Baldwin County, they would be going against the great weight of what our public opinion is about what's appropriate and what's not. I guarantee if you go to any of the high school football stadiums in Baldwin County this Friday night that are playing playoff games, you will see black and white cheering for their teams. And if they're on the same team, they're cheering together. Christina K. Decker, RMR, CRR Federal Official Court Reporter

I would be less effective if I had to spread that same effort over a wider geographic areas with other interests that aren't presently in my district. MR. A That's the way a congressman's office operates. We have so many people and groups that want to meet with us that it is a struggle to try to accommodate everybody. If you try to accommodate everybody as we do, you're not really hunting for other people to meet with because you don't have time to go hunting for people to meet with. You're just doing the best you can to meet with people that are making a request. And if they have made a request, obviously they have something that's important to them. And so we're going to do everything we can to accommodate them so we can hear what's important to them. Q So if you haven't reached out to any group of any kind of any nature, that doesn't mean you're opposed to that group? A Counselor, I'm also a member of the Alabama State Bar. I have never reached out to Alabama State Bar for a meeting. But they have with me. And so when they do, I will accommodate them. But I never call the Alabama State Bar for a meeting. Q Would you say that Mobile and Baldwin County are more connected today than they were in the '60s and before? A Absolutely. THE COURT: Why is that? THE WITNESS: Well, because back in the before that period of time, Your Honor, Baldwin County was a very sparsely populated rural county and had connections to Mobile, but they Christina K. Q Thank you for joining us. Josiah. Your friends call you Joe? A Please. Q Well, I can't from here. But not during this time. Mr. Bonner, where are you presently employed? A I am the Chief of Staff to the Governor of Alabama, Governor Kay Ivey. Q Have you ever represented Alabama's first district of the United States House of Representatives? A Yes, sir, I have. Q When did you serve in Congress? A I was elected in November of 2002. My term began in January of 2003, and then I served until August of 2013. Christina K. Q And you, of course, represented the first district in southwest Alabama? A That is correct. Q I'd like you to tell the Court about your district, Mr. Bonner, and particularly what are things that bind these areas together? If you believe they are a community of interest, please explain why. A Well, the first congressional district in my view is unlike any other congressional district in the state, in the sense that it is the only coastal district. So you've got Mobile and Baldwin counties in the southern part of the district that not only are connected by Mobile Bay but front the Gulf of Mexico. And so, therefore, everything I would call it a hub and spoke. Everything that radiates out radiates from the shared economies, the shared history, the shared social occasions, such as Mardi Gras, the shared political interests from Mobile and Baldwin counties. THE COURT: Okay. THE WITNESS: But, Judge, even the four-year and two-year colleges are different. If you look at the at this map, there is a community college in Mobile, Bishop State Community College. There's one in Baldwin County that has a campus in Escambia County and Monroe County. Coastal Alabama. The University of South Alabama, the University of Mobile and Spring Hill College. I don't have the numbers in front of me, but I would be confident in saying that many of their students, the vast majority of their in-state students are going to gravitate from that area. And, likewise, if you are from Houston, Dale, Henry, you're probably going to go to Troy if you're not going to Auburn or Alabama or going out of state. The community college, Wallace Community College over in Dothan, I mean, they're part of the same system, but they wouldn't even teach the same type of classes.

So let's assume that I ran where I currently live in Baldwin County. It would not only would it be a challenge to serve from a distance standpoint, there's there would be a lot to learn about their culture, their way of life, their economic engine, if you will. And there's just so little in common with this proposed District 1 that I think it would make it not only difficult to serve, I think you would very likely make it difficult to find people who would want to serve in a district like this. Q Would you be more hesitant to run for Congress if the district looked like this as opposed to the way the lines are presently? A I would. And I would be equally as impacted to run in District 2, as well. District 2, you could be the congressman from Mobile. I don't know where the population is on this map. So I'd have to look at the actual numbers. But I guess it's conceivable you could be elected to Mobile, and you would have to service in terms of representing Macon County, Bullock County, Lowndes County. There's very little in common. The people in Fort Deposit don't travel to Mobile to buy cars or to shop. And likewise, the distance you could go on the interstate, but it would take you probably three hours, Christina K. THE COURT: Okay. THE WITNESS: But, Judge, even the four-year and two-year colleges are different. If you look at the at this map, there is a community college in Mobile, Bishop State Community College. There's one in Baldwin County that has a campus in Escambia County and Monroe County. Coastal Alabama. The University of South Alabama, the University of Mobile and Spring Hill College. I don't have the numbers in front of me, but I would be confident in saying that many of their students, the vast majority of their in-state students are going to gravitate from that area. And, likewise, if you are from Houston, Dale, Henry, you're probably going to go to Troy if you're not going to Auburn or Alabama or going out of state. The community college, Wallace Community College over in Dothan, I mean, they're part of the same system, but they wouldn't even teach the same type of classes. I mean, again, we're our two-year system today is very actively we need 500,000 new workers in the next five years in Alabama. And our two-year system is being redesigned to help bring a lot of those workers in through the two-year education program. But if you're in Mobile and you're at the one of the Christina K. BY MR. DAVIS: Q Okay, Mr. Bonner. We were looking at one of the pages in Plaintiffs' 102, which was the congressional district plan adopted in the '90s. Before we continue, let me show you the one that was adopted in the '80s, and I will take it off the screen so we can see the difference. So do you recognize that as the district during the '80s decade? A Yes, sir. That was the district that I worked in as a college intern and also as a young congressional staffer. THE COURT: For the record, we're looking at Plaintiffs' Exhibit 102? MR. DAVIS: That is correct, Your Honor. Thank you for reminding me. BY MR. DAVIS: Q Jefferson County was largely whole in that district? A Well, it was a split county. Q Yes. A But it was more whole than in latter versions. Q Yeah. Let's look at the district then to the '90s. THE COURT: Wait a minute. How many districts did we have in the map that's Plaintiffs' Exhibit 102? THE WITNESS: Seven, Your Honor. We have had seven congressional districts since the 1960s, when we went from Christina K. Decker, RMR, CRR Federal Official Court Reporter 101 Holmes Avenue, NE

I say that because during my involvement in the redistricting process when we were in Montgomery with the state legislature, it was helpful for members of the delegation who had served in the Alabama Legislature. It was like a fraternity. And they had those relationships. Plus you had the seniority of Tom Bevill and Bill Dickenson, and Sonny Callahan was acquiring seniority at that point. The delegation, as I've indicated earlier, and as I'm sure other witnesses have said, has a very strong reputation for working together. The awkwardness of the effort to produce the first majority-minority map was that it was in all reality going to keep Congressman Harris from being able to continue to serve. He was not really interested in not leaving Congress, but the political map of a 65 percent African-American majority district made it unlikely that he would have been elected. Q Would you agree with me, Congressman Bonner, that when counties are split in a congressional district, that the Congress people who represent portions of those counties, they generally endeavor to work together to provide good representation to that county? A I can only speak with firsthand experience here. We certainly did. But I if you look at the current map, you would have to ask Congresswoman Sewell if she and Congressman Palmer have joint meetings together, or if she and Congresswoman Roby or Congressman Rogers I made an effort	2 3 4 15:34:55 5 6 7 8 9 15:35:11 10 11	believe. But it was split further in the 2011. Q And you as you just testified, you worked very hard to make sure that it was not detrimental, the split? A Yes, sir. Q And you mentioned that you and Representative Davis did town halls together? A As I did with Representative Sewell. Q Right. By the way, I went to law school with Representative Sewell and Representative Davis actually. But I must not have done something right though. A No. You did do something right. Q But you worked you worked cooperatively and amicably both with Representative Davis and with Representative Sewell?

Q And you as you just testified, you worked very hard to make sure that it was not detrimental, the split? A Yes, sir. Q And you mentioned that you and Representative Davis did town halls together? A As I did with Representative Sewell. Q Right. By the way, I went to law school with Representative Sewell and Representative Davis actually. But I must not have done something right though. A No. You did do something right. Q But you worked you worked cooperatively and amicably both with Representative Davis and with Representative Sewell? A It was a personal friendship, as well as a professional relationship in both instances. Q And would you agree that in some ways Clarke County got better representation because it had two Congress people to call for help? A I could not say that they got better representation. I would say that they knew from both of us, both Representative Davis and Representative Sewell that we had made it was easier to do when you're talking about one county, as well. But we made that commitment in good faith, and we honored it in good faith. THE COURT: Just a second. Christina K. Decker, RMR, CRR Federal Official Court Reporter

Totally my fault. BY MR. SPIVA: Q So, Congressman, after the 1991 census, the state failed to enact a map, a new map after reapportion? A That is correct. Q And there was litigation brought challenging the fact that the old map no longer complied with one person one vote; is that fair? A I will have to be honest. I don't remember all of the litigation that was brought. I remember I don't even remember how many times the legislature attempted to draw it. I believe that the governor at the time, Governor Siegelman, called them into special session maybe two or three times, to produce a map. And when they failed to because the clock was ticking on the upcoming election, the map that was put in place was put in place by a federal court and upheld, I believe, by a three-judge panel. Q But before the Court entered a map, did there wasn't there a consent map that the legislature passed as a result of litigation? A I regret I can't my memory's not quite that good. Q Okay. All right. So in that case, we'll just move on. And we can take the exhibit down. But you would agree with me that in that during that Christina K. Decker, RMR, CRR Federal Official Court Reporter
16:02:55	THE COURT: I'm trying to figure out. MR. SPIVA: Maybe I will try to break it down again just for clarity. But I think the testimony so far has shown but let me give a proffer so you'll see where I'm going. The state failed to enact a map after the 1991 census. Litigation was brought challenging the existing THE COURT: Failure to do so. MR. SPIVA: On one person one vote grounds. That litigation resulted in a consent map that the legislature enacted and I am going to ask you if you agree with all this in just a minute that the legislature enacted. They sought preclearance of that map. DOJ in this letter declined preclearance on the grounds that it only had one majority-minority district, and it appeared that there was fragmentation of black population and that it was unnecessary just to have one district. The Court ultimately ordered so that map did not go into effect. And then there was not enough time, and the Court ultimately ordered a map which then stayed in place for the rest of the '90s. THE COURT: Which is the one that is in here as 1992? MR. SPIVA: Exactly, Your Honor. 14	A I was not.	14
:13:58 15		16:16:28 15
16	Q In the 2000 cycle redistricting, you were also still working for Representative Callahan at the time?	16:16:28
17	A In 2000?	17	5
18	Q Yes.	18	would have circled his house and taken his district under
19	A Yes, sir.	19	Mobile Bay there was a legal question about whether that
:14:09 20		16:16:51 20	would establish a contiguous district into Baldwin County all
21	Q And Representative Callahan spent $250,000 to ensure that	21	the way over the Dothan, and I believe all the way up to
22	the districts didn't change from their prior configuration, or	22	Auburn.
23	changed as little as possible; is that fair?	23	So he was not only not supportive of it. He was opposed
24	A I don't know the amount. I know that he did spend money	24	to it, because he would have left his driveway his home

I'm asking you: In order to get an additional majority-minority congressional district setting aside whether someone could get elected or not, in Alabama that would mean two majority minority congressional districts? A I understand where you're going with that. I the map being what it is, to get another additional majority-minority district, you would have to draw a second one. Q Thank you, Congressman. And then the last thing that I have is that you were asked whether in the 1990s you were aware of anyone suing to try to stop the plan that the Court had ordered with one congressional district. And my only follow-up to that is: Are you aware that the black population in Alabama has grown between 1990 or grew between 1990 and 2010? A I'm not aware. But I would certainly not dispute that. Q Okay. Thank you so much. I really appreciate it. A Thank you. THE COURT: Anything further, Mr. Davis? MR. DAVIS: Nothing further, Your Honor. THE COURT: Okay. Thank you, Congressman Bonner. I appreciate you being here. THE WITNESS: Thank you, Judge. THE COURT: You may step down.

Oh, assuming from the letter that you saw, the preclearance letter from DOJ in 1992, did you understand DOJ to be saying that perhaps it was possible to draw two majority-minority districts in Alabama? A That would be my interpretation of that. Q Are you aware of anyone who, after that letter was issued, went to the federal court and said, Don't approve the one majority black plan. Here is the majority here is the plan with two minority-majority districts. Pass this one instead? A Counsel, I want to be consistent. It's been a few years since 1992, but I do not recall that happening.
