Civil Action No. 3:13-cv-00678-REP-LO-AKD

MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORITIES IN SUPPORT OF MOTION TO QUASH SUBPOENAS TO ROBERT B. BELL, WILLIAM ROBERT JANIS, AND CHRISTOPHER MARSTON AND/OR FOR A PROTECTIVE ORDER

Plaintiffs Dawn Curry Page, Gloria Personhuballah, and James Farkas (collectively, the “Plaintiffs”) are seeking third party discovery from Robert B. Bell, William Robert Janis, and Christopher Marston (collectively, the “Movants”). All discovery sought by Plaintiffs is barred by a broad legislative privilege and/or the attorney-client privilege. Additionally, Plaintiffs seek to depose a sitting member of the Virginia General Assembly during a special session, which is improper as a matter of law, and seek discovery of documents and information not relevant in the above-captioned proceeding, all of which imposes an undue burden on Movants.

Plaintiffs filed the above-captioned proceeding on October 2, 2013. The Complaint seeks declaratory and injunctive relief prohibiting the Attorney General of the Commonwealth of Virginia and members of the Virginia Board of Elections from implementing or conducting further elections for the U.S. House of Representatives based on Congressional District 3 of the Congressional Plan enacted in 2012. Plaintiffs allege that the district is unconstitutional under the Fourteenth Amendment to the United States Constitution. (ECF No. 1.) In December 2013, members of the Virginia Delegation to the U.S. House of Representatives were granted leave to intervene in the proceeding. (ECF No. 26.) The matter is pending before a three-judge panel and is scheduled for trial in May 2014. (ECF No. 54.)

In March 2014, Plaintiffs served three subpoenas on Movants, who are not parties to the proceeding. Robert B. Bell (“Delegate Bell”) is a current member of the Virginia House of Delegates representing the 58th legislative district. William Robert Janis (“Delegate Janis”) is a former member of the Virginia House of Delegates who represented the 56th legislative district from January 2002 through January 2012. Christopher Marston is an attorney admitted to practice in the Commonwealth of Virginia who provided legal and consulting services to the Virginia House of Delegates in connection with the 2010 redistricting cycle. Plaintiffs’ subpoenas to Delegate Bell and Delegate Janis command that they appear for depositions on March 24, 2014 (the “Deposition Subpoenas”). A representative copy of the Deposition Subpoenas is attached hereto as Exhibit A. Plaintiffs’ subpoena to Mr. Marston commands production on March 19, 2014, of a broad range of documents, including a request for “[a]ll documents related to the 2012 Virginia Redistricting” (the “Subpoena Duces Tecum”). A true and correct copy of the Subpoena Duces Tecum is attached hereto as Exhibit B. Counsel for Plaintiffs agreed to extend the time to respond or object to the subpoenas. Accordingly, Mr. Marston is filing his objections contemporaneously with the Motion. The filing, entitled Objections of Christopher Marston to Plaintiffs’ Third Party Subpoena for the Production of Documents (the “Objections to the Subpoena Duces Tecum”), is incorporated herein.

All three subpoenas seek disclosure of information protected by legislative privilege and/or the attorney-client privilege and subject Movants to undue burden. For these reasons, and on the grounds stated in the Objections to the Subpoena Duces Tecum, the subpoenas must be quashed and/or a protective order issued to protect Movants from unwarranted distraction and the burden and expense of responding.

I. THE SUBPOENAS SHOULD BE QUASHED AND/OR A PROTECTIVE ORDER ENTERED

Under the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, “[p]arties may obtain discovery regarding any nonprivileged matter that is relevant to any party’s claim or defense . . . .” Fed. R. Civ. P. 26(b)(1). Upon “timely motion,” a court “must quash or modify a subpoena that . . . requires disclosure of privileged or other protected matter, if no exception or waiver applies.” Fed. R. Civ. P. 45(d)(3)(iii); Cappetta v. GC Servs. Ltd. P’ship, 266 F.R.D. 121,124 (E.D. Va. 2009). A court also must quash or modify a subpoena that “subjects a person to undue burden.” Fed. R. Civ. P. 45(d)(3)(iv). Similarly, pursuant to Rule 26 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, a court “may, for good cause,” issue a protective order “forbidding the disclosure of discovery,” or “specifying the terms, including the time and place, for the disclosure of discovery.” Fed. R. Civ. P. 26(c)(1)(A)-(B). As outlined below, the legislative and attorney-client privileges preclude Movants from responding to the subpoenas and the scope of the subpoenas impose an undue burden such that there is grounds to quash the subpoenas and good cause to enter a protective order forbidding the third-party discovery sought by Plaintiffs.

A. The Subpoenas Seek Disclosure of Privileged Information

The subpoenas seek information that is protected by both legislative and attorney-client privilege.

1. *Legislative Privilege Precludes Disclosure

Legislative privilege protects Movants from civil process compelling a response to the subpoenas. The privilege is broad and well-established. Courts, including the Supreme Court of the United States and the United State Court of Appeals for the Fourth Circuit, have “broadly recognized the right ‘of legislators to be free from arrest or civil process for what they do or say in legislative proceedings.’” Equal Emp’t Opportunity Comm’n v. Wash. Suburban Sanitary Comm’n, 631 F.3d 174, 180 (4th Cir. 2011) (quoting and citing Tenney v. Brandhove, 341 U.S. 367, 372 (1951)). This right is rooted in the absolute immunity granted by the Speech or Debate Clause of the United States Constitution, which the Supreme Court long ago extended to state legislators. Tenney, 341 U.S. at 372. Consistent with Tenney, Virginia state constitutional and statutory law provides “legislative immunity for actions taken while within ‘the sphere of legitimate legislative activity.’” Schiltz v. Commonwealth of Virginia, 854 F.2d 43, 45 (4th Cir. 1988) (recognizing that Tenney extended the protection of the Speech or Debate Clause to state legislators), overruled on other grounds, Berkley v. Common Council of City of Charleston, 63 F.3d 295 (4th Cir. 1995)); Va. Const. art. IV, § 9; Va. Code Ann. §§ 30-4, 30-6 (West 2013).

The scope of legislative immunity is broad and protects “those engaged in legislative functions against the pressures of litigation and the liability that may result.” McCray v. Md. Dep’t of Transp., Md. Transit Admin., 741 F.3d 480, 484 (4th Cir. 2014); Bd. of Supervisors of Fluvanna Cnty. v. Davenport & Co., 742 S.E.2d 59, 62 (Va. 2013). “Legislative privilege against compulsory process exists to safeguard this legislative immunity,” and to provide policymakers protection “from the burden of defending themselves.” Wash. Suburban Sanitary, 631 F.3d at 181. The privilege covers not only legislators, but “all those properly acting in a legislative capacity,” and extends to legislative aides, experts, and consultants who advise legislators. McCray, 741 F.3d at 485; Doe v. McMillan, 412 U.S. 306, 312 (1973) (recognizing that legislative immunity barred suit against not only Members of Congress, but also “Committee staff” and a “consultant”). Consequently, where “private plaintiffs s[seek] to compel information from legislative actors about their legislative activity, they [do] not need to comply.”<sup>1</sup> Wash. Suburban Sanitary, 631 F.3d at 181. The privilege applies here and necessitates quashing the subpoenas.

The Deposition Subpoenas are covered by the legislative privilege. Delegates Bell and Janis were sitting members of the General Assembly at the time when the Congressional plan at issue in this proceeding was developed and enacted. Activities relating to preparation, introduction, and enactment of legislation are quintessential “legislative activity.” Bd. of Supervisors, 742 S.E.2d at 63.

Legislative actions include, but are not limited to, “delivering an opinion, uttering a speech, or haranguing in debate; proposing legislation; voting on legislation; making, publishing, presenting, and using legislative reports; authorizing investigations and issuing subpoenas; and holding hearings and introducing material at Committee hearings.”

Id. (quoting Fields v. Office of Johnson, 459 F.3d 1, 10-11 (D.C. Cir. 2006)). As such, Plaintiffs are proscribed from inquiring into any subject matter concerning the deliberative process that led to the creation or enactment of the challenged plan. Greenburg v. Collier, 482 F. Supp. 200, 203 (E.D. Va. 1979) (“Legislative motive is beyond inquiry whether it is sought to be established through legislative or political activities.”); Bd. of Supervisors, 742 S.E.2d at 63. The Deposition Subpoenas do not identify what subjects Plaintiffs intend to cover, but Movants are not aware of—nor can they envision—any subject matter relevant to the proceedings that would not fall under the legislative privilege.<sup>2</sup>

<sup>1</sup> As the Fourth Circuit has recognized, “[b]ecause litigation’s costs do not fall on named parties alone, this privilege applies whether or not the legislators themselves have been sued.” Wash. Suburban Sanitary, 631 F.3d at 181.

<sup>2</sup> Apart from the constitutional protection of legislative privilege, Plaintiffs’ attempt to depose Delegate Bell while the General Assembly is in special session is plainly prohibited by the Virginia Code, which shields sitting members of the General Assembly from being compelled to “appear or to answer or respond, in person or in writing” in “any civil proceeding” during a session of the General Assembly or within fifteen days after its conclusion. Va. Code Ann. § 30-4 (West 2013); see also Va. Code Ann. § 30-6 (West 2013).

The same is true of the Subpoena Duces Tecum to Mr. Marston, which also is covered by the privilege. The subpoena seeks, inter alia, “[a]ll maps and draft maps related to the 2012 Virginia Redistricting” and “[a]ll communications” with the General Assembly, members of Congress, the Republican National Committee, and the National Republican Congressional Committee “related to the 2012 Virginia Redistricting.”<sup>3</sup> Exhibit B. The term “2012 Virginia Redistricting” is defined to mean “any activity relating to the Virginia General Assembly’s efforts to draw and adopt state legislative and congressional districts in 2010, 2011, and 2012.” Id. Accordingly, the Subpoena Duces Tecum seeks documents comprising or concerning the deliberative process that led to the development, introduction, and enactment of the challenged Congressional plan, as well as the unchallenged state legislative plans. As outlined above, these topics are squarely within the purview of legislative activity, and attempting to compel production of the requested documents runs afoul of legislative privilege. See Brown & Williamson Tobacco Corp. v. Williams, 62 F.3d 408, 421 (D.C. Cir. 1995) (affirming district court’s quashing of subpoenas duces tecum issues to federal legislators and recognizing that “[a] party is no more entitled to compel congressional testimony—or a production of documents—than it is to sue congressmen”) (emphasis added).

The fact that the Subpoena Duces Tecum is directed to a consultant and attorney, and not to a member of the General Assembly, does not vitiate the protection. See, e.g., McMillan, 412 U.S. at 312; McCray, 741 F.3d at 485. The question is whether Mr. Marston was performing “services that would be immune legislative conduct if performed by the [legislator] himself.” Gravel v. United States, 408 U.S. 606, 622 (1972). This question is easily answered in the affirmative here. Mr. Marston advised members of the General Assembly concerning the redistricting process, including but not limited to the development and enactment of all three of Virginia's (challenged and unchallenged) redistricting plans, which is legislative conduct. Because he functioned as a legislative actor, Mr. Marston is entitled to the same protections afforded to the members themselves and the Subpoena Duces Tecum should be quashed. See McCray, 741 F.3d at 485.

<sup>3</sup> The sixth request in the Subpoena Duces Tecum seeks “[a]ll public statements made by [Mr. Marston] related to the 2012 Virginia Redistricting.” Exhibit B. Movants do not contend that documents responsive to this request would be covered by legislative privilege, but because there are no documents responsive to the request, it does not impact application of the legislative privilege. See Objections to the Subpoena Duces Tecum, filed in the above-captioned proceeding and incorporated herein.

2. The Attorney-Client Privilege Applies to the Subpoena *Duces Tecum

Additionally, many of the documents sought by the Subpoena Duces Tecum are covered by the attorney-client privilege and not subject to discovery. The attorney-client privilege has been recognized in Virginia for more than a century:

It is conceded, and if it were not it is well settled, that confidential communications between an attorney and his client made because of that relationship and concerning the subject matter of the attorney's employment, are privileged from disclosure, even for the purpose of administering justice.

Grant v. Harris, 82 S.E. 718, 719 (Va. 1914). Under the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, parties may only obtain discovery of relevant material to the extent it is not privileged. Fed. R. Civ. P. 26(b)(1). Thus, where the attorney-client privilege applies, Plaintiffs are not entitled to discovery, and given the breadth of the requests in the Subpoena Duces Tecum, the privilege is likely to apply broadly here.

Mr. Marston is an attorney licensed to practice in the Commonwealth of Virginia and provided legal counsel to the Virginia General Assembly during the 2010 redistricting cycle. As such, all written or verbal communications between Mr. Marston and members of the General Assembly wherein Mr. Marston provided legal advice are privileged. These same communications are likely to be responsive to the Subpoena Duces Tecum, which requests all documents related to the redistricting, including maps, draft maps, or documents evidencing efforts to create such maps, and all communications with the General Assembly relating to the redistricting. See Exhibit B. While a party ordinarily asserts the attorney-client privilege on a document-by-document basis, the sheer breadth of the subpoena's demands for communications hinders Mr. Marston's ability to claim the privilege even where lawfully and properly asserted due to the extraordinary burden and expense—which would be imposed on a third party—of reviewing hundreds of e-mail communications.

B. The Subpoenas Impose an Undue Burden on Movants

The Deposition Subpoenas and the Subpoena Duces Tecum impose an undue burden on Movants. Movants are not parties to the proceeding and, while third-party discovery is permitted under the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, a subpoena that “seeks information irrelevant to the case or that would require a non-party to incur excessive [or unnecessary] expenditure of time or money” imposes an undue burden and must be quashed. Singlary v. Sterling Transport Co., 289 F.R.D. 237, 241 (E.D. Va. 2012) (quoting Cook v. Howard, No. 11-1601, 2012 WL 3634451, at *6 n.7 (4th Cir. Aug. 24, 2012)). All three subpoenas fall into this category.

The Subpoena Duces Tecum seeks the production of documents not relevant to the above-captioned proceeding. During the 2010 redistricting cycle, the General Assembly enacted three plans, one being the Congressional plan challenged here, and the remaining two being state legislative plans, which are not challenged in this proceeding. Nonetheless, the Subpoena Duces Tecum explicitly requests documents comprising or relating to the state legislative plans. Exhibit B (defining the term “2012 Virginia Redistricting” to include “efforts to draw and adopt state legislative . . . districts”). As discussed above, any responsive documents would be subject to legislative or attorney-client privilege, but even assuming that some are not, documents and information concerning the state legislative plans are irrelevant and unlikely to be admissible in the trial of the case at bar. It is not permissible to require Mr. Marston to respond to such broad and untethered requests, particularly when doing so would entail considerable time and expense.

The Deposition Subpoenas likewise impose an undue burden on Delegate Bell and Delegate Janis. As noted above, Delegate Bell is presently engaged in a special legislative session called by the Governor and, as a matter of law, cannot be compelled to appear in any civil proceeding until a specified period of time after the session adjourns. Va. Const. art. IV, § 9; Va. Code Ann. §§ 30-4, 30-6 (West 2013). On a more practical level, Delegate Bell does not have the time to appear for a deposition without neglecting his legislative duties. Furthermore, given the application of legislative privilege, there is no reason to believe it fruitful to depose Delegate Janis or Delegate Bell. Plaintiffs have not identified any relevant topic of which either Movant has knowledge that is not protected from disclosure by the legislative privilege. Neither Delegate Bell nor Delegate Janis should be burdened with the distraction and expense of planning and preparing for a deposition unless Plaintiffs can identify relevant subject matter not protected by the privilege.

II. CONCLUSION

For the reasons set forth above, Movants respectfully request that their Motion be granted.

Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 45 (c), (d), (e), and (g) (Effective 12/1/13)*(c) Place of Compliance.

(1) For a Trial, Hearing, or Deposition. A subpoena may command a person to attend a trial, hearing, or deposition only as follows:

- (A) within 100 miles of where the person resides, is employed, or regularly transacts business in person; or
- (B) within the state where the person resides, is employed, or regularly transacts business in person, if the person
  - (i) is a party or a party's officer; or
  - (ii) is commanded to attend a trial and would not incur substantial expense.

(2) For Other Discovery. A subpoena may command:

- (A) production of documents, electronically stored information, or tangible things at a place within 100 miles of where the person resides, is employed, or regularly transacts business in person; and
- (B) inspection of premises at the premises to be inspected.

(d) Protecting a Person Subject to a Subpoena; Enforcement.

(1) Avoiding Undue Burden or Expense; Sanctions. A party or attorney responsible for issuing and serving a subpoena must take reasonable steps to avoid imposing undue burden or expense on a person subject to the subpoena. The court for the district where compliance is required must enforce this duty and impose an appropriate sanction—which may include lost earnings and reasonable attorney's fees—on a party or attorney who fails to comply.

(2) Command to Produce Materials or Permit Inspection.

(A) Appearance Not Required. A person commanded to produce documents, electronically stored information, or tangible things, or to permit the inspection of premises, need not appear in person at the place of production or inspection unless also commanded to appear for a deposition, hearing, or trial.

(B) Objections. A person commanded to produce documents or tangible things or to permit inspection may serve on the party or attorney designated in the subpoena a written objection to inspecting, copying, testing, or sampling any or all of the materials or to inspecting the premises—or to producing electronically stored information in the form or forms requested. The objection must be served before the earlier of the time specified for compliance or 14 days after the subpoena is served. If an objection is made, the following rules apply:

- (i) At any time, on notice to the commanded person, the serving party may move the court for the district where compliance is required for an order compelling production or inspection.
- (ii) These acts may be required only as directed in the order, and the order must protect a person who is neither a party nor a party's officer from significant expense resulting from compliance.

(3) Quashing or Modifying a Subpoena.

(A) When Required. On timely motion, the court for the district where compliance is required must quash or modify a subpoena that:

- (i) fails to allow a reasonable time to comply;
- (ii) requires a person to comply beyond the geographical limits specified in Rule 45(c);
- (iii) requires disclosure of privileged or other protected matter, if no exception or waiver applies; or
- (iv) subjects a person to undue burden.

(B) When Permitted. To protect a person subject to or affected by a subpoena, the court for the district where compliance is required may, on motion, quash or modify the subpoena if it requires:

(i) disclosing a trade secret or other confidential research, development, or commercial information; or

(ii) disclosing an unretained expert's opinion or information that does not describe specific occurrences in dispute and results from the expert's study that was not requested by a party.

(C) Specifying Conditions as an Alternative. In the circumstances described in Rule 45(d)(3)(B), the court may, instead of quashing or modifying a subpoena, order appearance or production under specified conditions if the serving party:

- (i) shows a substantial need for the testimony or material that cannot be otherwise met without undue hardship; and
- (ii) ensures that the subpoenaed person will be reasonably compensated.

(e) Duties in Responding to a Subpoena.

(1) Producing Documents or Electronically Stored Information. These procedures apply to producing documents or electronically stored information:

(A) Documents. A person responding to a subpoena to produce documents must produce them as they are kept in the ordinary course of business or must organize and label them to correspond to the categories in the demand.

(B) Form for Producing Electronically Stored Information Not Specified. If a subpoena does not specify a form for producing electronically stored information, the person responding must produce it in a form or forms in which it is ordinarily maintained or in a reasonably usable form or forms.

(C) Electronically Stored Information Produced in Only One Form. The person responding need not produce the same electronically stored information in more than one form.

(D) Inaccessible Electronically Stored Information. The person responding need not provide discovery of electronically stored information from sources that the person identifies as not reasonably accessible because of undue burden or cost. On motion to compel discovery or for a protective order, the person responding must show that the information is not reasonably accessible because of undue burden or cost. If that showing is made, the court may nonetheless order discovery from such sources if the requesting party shows good cause, considering the limitations of Rule 26(b)(2)(C). The court may specify conditions for the discovery.

(2) Claiming Privilege or Protection.

(A) Information Withheld. A person withholding subpoenaed information under a claim that it is privileged or subject to protection as trial-preparation material must:

- (i) expressly make the claim; and
- (ii) describe the nature of the withheld documents, communications, or tangible things in a manner that, without revealing information itself privileged or protected, will enable the parties to assess the claim.

(B) Information Produced. If information produced in response to a subpoena is subject to a claim of privilege or of protection as trial-preparation material, the person making the claim may notify any party that received the information of the claim and the basis for it. After being notified, a party must promptly return, sequester, or destroy the specified information and any copies it has; must not use or disclose the information until the claim is resolved; must take reasonable steps to retrieve the information if the party disclosed it before being notified; and may promptly present the information under seal to the court for the district where compliance is required for a determination of the claim. The person who produced the information must preserve the information until the claim is resolved.

(g) Contempt.

The court for the district where compliance is required—and also, after a motion is transferred, the issuing court—may hold in contempt a person who, having been served, fails without adequate excuse to obey the subpoena or an order related to it.

Additional information regarding attempted service, etc.:

Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 45 (c), (d), (e), and (g) (Effective 12/1/13)*(c) Place of Compliance.

(1) For a Trial, Hearing, or Deposition. A subpoena may command a person to attend a trial, hearing, or deposition only as follows:

- (A) within 100 miles of where the person resides, is employed, or regularly transacts business in person; or
- (B) within the state where the person resides, is employed, or regularly transacts business in person, if the person
  - (i) is a party or a party's officer; or
  - (ii) is commanded to attend a trial and would not incur substantial expense.

(2) For Other Discovery. A subpoena may command:

- (A) production of documents, electronically stored information, or tangible things at a place within 100 miles of where the person resides, is employed, or regularly transacts business in person; and
- (B) inspection of premises at the premises to be inspected.

(d) Protecting a Person Subject to a Subpoena; Enforcement.

(1) Avoiding Undue Burden or Expense; Sanctions. A party or attorney responsible for issuing and serving a subpoena must take reasonable steps to avoid imposing undue burden or expense on a person subject to the subpoena. The court for the district where compliance is required must enforce this duty and impose an appropriate sanction—which may include lost earnings and reasonable attorney's fees—on a party or attorney who fails to comply.

(2) Command to Produce Materials or Permit Inspection.

(A) Appearance Not Required. A person commanded to produce documents, electronically stored information, or tangible things, or to permit the inspection of premises, need not appear in person at the place of production or inspection unless also commanded to appear for a deposition, hearing, or trial.

(B) Objections. A person commanded to produce documents or tangible things or to permit inspection may serve on the party or attorney designated in the subpoena a written objection to inspecting, copying, testing, or sampling any or all of the materials or to inspecting the premises—or to producing electronically stored information in the form or forms requested. The objection must be served before the earlier of the time specified for compliance or 14 days after the subpoena is served. If an objection is made, the following rules apply:

- (i) At any time, on notice to the commanded person, the serving party may move the court for the district where compliance is required for an order compelling production or inspection.
- (ii) These acts may be required only as directed in the order, and the order must protect a person who is neither a party nor a party's officer from significant expense resulting from compliance.

(3) Quashing or Modifying a Subpoena.

(A) When Required. On timely motion, the court for the district where compliance is required must quash or modify a subpoena that:

- (i) fails to allow a reasonable time to comply;
- (ii) requires a person to comply beyond the geographical limits specified in Rule 45(c);
- (iii) requires disclosure of privileged or other protected matter, if no exception or waiver applies; or
- (iv) subjects a person to undue burden.

(B) When Permitted. To protect a person subject to or affected by a subpoena, the court for the district where compliance is required may, on motion, quash or modify the subpoena if it requires:

- (i) disclosing a trade secret or other confidential research, development, or commercial information; or

(ii) disclosing an unretained expert's opinion or information that does not describe specific occurrences in dispute and results from the expert's study that was not requested by a party.

(C) Specifying Conditions as an Alternative. In the circumstances described in Rule 45(d)(3)(B), the court may, instead of quashing or modifying a subpoena, order appearance or production under specified conditions if the serving party:

- (i) shows a substantial need for the testimony or material that cannot be otherwise met without undue hardship; and
- (ii) ensures that the subpoenaed person will be reasonably compensated.

(e) Duties in Responding to a Subpoena.

(1) Producing Documents or Electronically Stored Information. These procedures apply to producing documents or electronically stored information:

(A) Documents. A person responding to a subpoena to produce documents must produce them as they are kept in the ordinary course of business or must organize and label them to correspond to the categories in the demand.

(B) Form for Producing Electronically Stored Information Not Specified. If a subpoena does not specify a form for producing electronically stored information, the person responding must produce it in a form or forms in which it is ordinarily maintained or in a reasonably usable form or forms.

(C) Electronically Stored Information Produced in Only One Form. The person responding need not produce the same electronically stored information in more than one form.

(D) Inaccessible Electronically Stored Information. The person responding need not provide discovery of electronically stored information from sources that the person identifies as not reasonably accessible because of undue burden or cost. On motion to compel discovery or for a protective order, the person responding must show that the information is not reasonably accessible because of undue burden or cost. If that showing is made, the court may nonetheless order discovery from such sources if the requesting party shows good cause, considering the limitations of Rule 26(b)(2)(C). The court may specify conditions for the discovery.

(2) Claiming Privilege or Protection.

(A) Information Withheld. A person withholding subpoenaed information under a claim that it is privileged or subject to protection as trial-preparation material must:

- (i) expressly make the claim; and
- (ii) describe the nature of the withheld documents, communications, or tangible things in a manner that, without revealing information itself privileged or protected, will enable the parties to assess the claim.

(B) Information Produced. If information produced in response to a subpoena is subject to a claim of privilege or of protection as trial-preparation material, the person making the claim may notify any party that received the information of the claim and the basis for it. After being notified, a party must promptly return, sequester, or destroy the specified information and any copies it has; must not use or disclose the information until the claim is resolved; must take reasonable steps to retrieve the information if the party disclosed it before being notified; and may promptly present the information under seal to the court for the district where compliance is required for a determination of the claim. The person who produced the information must preserve the information until the claim is resolved.

(g) Contempt.

The court for the district where compliance is required—and also, after a motion is transferred, the issuing court—may hold in contempt a person who, having been served, fails without adequate excuse to obey the subpoena or an order related to it.

7. The word "communication" means any transmission or exchange of information between two or more persons orally or in writing and includes, without limitation, any conversation or discussion, whether face-to-face or by means of any telephone, telegraph, telecopies, electronic, or other media.

8. The phrase "related to" shall mean, without limitation, directly or indirectly constituting, evidencing, concerning, regarding, mentioning, discussing, describing, commenting upon, referring to, pertaining to, being connected with or reflecting upon the stated subject matter.

9. "And" and "or" shall be construed conjunctively or disjunctively as necessary to bring within the scope of these requests information that might otherwise be construed as being outside their scope. The use of the words "including" shall be construed to mean "without limitations."

10. This subpoena shall be deemed continuing so as to require supplemental responses if you obtain further documents after the time your responses are served.

11. File folders with tabs or labels identifying documents responsive to these requests should be produced intact with the documents.

12. Documents attached to each other should not be separated.

13. Documents shall be produced in Tagged Image File Format ("TIFF"), single page, black and white (or in color, if necessary for any given document or its content to be readable), dithered (if appropriate), at 300 x 300 dpi resolution and 8½ x 11 inch page size, except for documents requiring different resolution or page size to make them readable.

Each TIFF document shall be produced with an image load file in standard Opticon (*.log) format that reflects the parent / child relationship. In addition, each TIFF document shall also be produced with a data load file in Concordance delimited format (*.dat), indicating (at a minimum) appropriate unitization of the documents, including beginning and ending production numbers for (a) each document set, and (b) each attachment within each document set. The TIFF images shall also be accompanied by extracted text or, for those files that do not have extracted text upon being processed (such as hard copy documents), optical character recognition ("OCR") text data; such extracted text or OCR text data shall be provided in document level form and named after the TIFF image. Documents that contain redactions shall be OCR'd after the redaction is applied to the image, and the OCR will be produced in place of extracted text at the document level. Notwithstanding the foregoing, the parties may negotiate a separate production format (including native format) for any documents that are not reasonably producible or readable as standard image files, such as audio files or large spreadsheets.

14. For documents produced in TIFF format that originated in electronic form, metadata shall be included with the data load files described above, and shall include (at a minimum) the following information: file name (including extension); original file path; page count; creation date and time; last saved date and time; last modified date and time; author; custodian of the document (that is, the custodian from whom the document was collected or, if collected from a shared drive or server, the name of the shared driver or server); and MD5 hash value. In addition, for email documents, the data load files shall also include the following metadata: sent date; sent time; received date; received time; "to" name(s) and address(es); "from" name and address; "cc" name(s) and address(es); "bcc" name(s) and address(es); subject; names of attachment(s); and attachment(s) count.
