

LATHAM & WATKINS LLP
Steven M. Bauer (Bar No. 135067)
steven.bauer@lw.com
Sadik Huseny (Bar No. 224659)
sadik.huseny@lw.com
Amit Makker (Bar No. 280747)
amit.makker@lw.com
Shannon D. Lankenau (Bar. No. 294263)
shannon.lankenau@lw.com
Cindy Guan (Bar No. 317036)
cindy.guan@lw.com
505 Montgomery Street, Suite 1900
San Francisco, California 94111
T: 415.391.0600 / F: 415.395.8095

LATHAM & WATKINS LLP
Richard P. Bress (admitted pro hac vice) rick.bress@lw.com
555 Eleventh Street NW, Suite 1000
Washington, D.C. 20004
T: 202.637.2200 / F: 202.637.2201

Attorneys for Plaintiffs City of San Jose, King County, Arlington County, Harris County, Black Alliance for Just Immigration, Liccardo, Ellis, Yilma, Kargbo-Thompson, and Etienne

LAWYERS' COMMITTEE FOR CIVIL RIGHTS UNDER LAW
Kristen Clarke (admitted pro hac vice) kclarke@lawyerscommittee.org
Jon M. Greenbaum (Bar No. 166733)
jgreenbaum@lawyerscommittee.org
Ezra D. Rosenberg (admitted pro hac vice) erosenberg@lawyerscommittee.org
Dorian L. Spence (admitted pro hac vice) dspence@lawyerscommittee.org
Maryum Jordan (admitted pro hac vice) mjordan@lawyerscommittee.org
Ajay Saini (admitted pro hac vice) asaini@lawyerscommittee.org
1500 K Street NW, Suite 900
Washington, DC 20005
T: 202.662.8600 / F: 202.783.0857

Attorneys for Plaintiffs City of San Jose, King County, Harris County, Black Alliance for Just Immigration, Liccardo, Ellis, Yilma, Kargbo-Thompson, and Etienne

PUBLIC COUNSEL
Mark Rosenbaum (Bar No. 59940)
mrosenbaum@publiccounsel.org
610 South Ardmore Avenue
Los Angeles, California 90005
T: 213.385.2977 / F: 213.385.9089

Attorneys for Plaintiff City of San Jose

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
NORTHERN DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA
SAN JOSE DIVISION

CITY OF SAN JOSE, CALIFORNIA, et al.,
Plaintiffs,

v.

DONALD J. TRUMP, in his official capacity
as President of the United States, et al.,

Defendants.

STATE OF CALIFORNIA, et al.,

Plaintiffs,

v.

DONALD J. TRUMP, in his official capacity
as President of the United States, et al.,

Defendants.

Case No. 5:20-cv-05167-LHK-RRC-EMC
Case No. 5:20-cv-05169-LHK-RRC-EMC

PLAINTIFFS' NOTICE OF MOTION AND MOTION FOR PARTIAL SUMMARY JUDGMENT;
MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORITIES IN SUPPORT

Date: October 8, 2020, 2020
Time: 1:30 p.m.
Place: Courtroom 8, 4th Floor
Judge: Honorable Richard R. Clifton
Honorable Lucy H. Koh
Honorable Edward M. Chen

1
2
3
4
5
6
7
8
9 10
11 12 13 14 15 16
17 18 19 20 21
22
23
24
25
26 27
28

NOTICE OF MOTION AND MOTION

PLEASE TAKE NOTICE that at 1:30 p.m. on October 8, 2020 in Courtroom 8 of the United States District Court, located at 280 South 1st Street in San Jose, CA 95113, Plaintiffs City of San Jose, King County, Arlington County, Harris County, Black Alliance For Just Immigration (BAJI), Sam Liccardo, Rodney Ellis, Zerihoun Yilma, Lovette Kargbo-Thompson, and Santcha Etienne will move for partial summary judgment on the first and third claims for relief in their First Amended Complaint pursuant to Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 56(a).

Plaintiffs seek an order entering partial summary judgment in their favor on the first and third claims for relief and (1) declaring that the directive to exclude all undocumented persons from the apportionment base, contained in the July 21, 2020 Memorandum, Excluding Illegal Aliens From the Apportionment Base Following the 2020 Census, 85 Fed. Reg. 44679 (Dkt. No. 1-1) (the Apportionment Exclusion Order), violates Article I and the Fourteenth Amendment of the U.S. Constitution; (2) declaring that the Apportionment Exclusion Order’s directive to exclude all undocumented persons from the apportionment base violates 2 U.S.C. § 2a(a) and 13 U.S.C. § 141 and is ultra vires; (3) declaring that any statement from the President to Congress under 2 U.S.C. § 2a(a) that excludes all undocumented persons residing in the United States from the apportionment base would be unlawful and without legal effect; (4) enjoining Defendants Department of Commerce, Census Bureau, Ross, and Dillingham from excluding all undocumented persons from the apportionment base or assisting President Trump in that effort; and (5) maintaining jurisdiction over the case until a statement under 2 U.S.C. § 2a(a) that complies with the Constitution and statutory law is provided to Congress.

Plaintiffs’ Motion is based on this Notice of Motion and Motion, the Memorandum of Points and Authorities, the Declarations of Shannon D. Lanckenau, Ruth Gilgenbach, Matthew A. Barreto, Nana Gyamfi, Sam Liccardo, Zerihoun Yilma, and Rodney Ellis, and the exhibits thereto.

1
2
3
4
5
6
7
8
9 10
11 12 13 14 15 16
17 18 19 20 21
22
23
24
25
26 27
28

MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORITIES

TABLE OF CONTENTS

| | | Page |
|------|---|-------------|
| I. | INTRODUCTION | 1 |
| II. | STATEMENT OF ISSUES TO BE DECIDED | 3 |
| III. | BACKGROUND | 3 |
| | A. Congressional Apportionment and the Decennial Census..... | 3 |
| | B. The July 21, 2020 Apportionment Exclusion Order..... | 5 |
| | C. The Backdrop to the Order | 6 |
| IV. | LEGAL STANDARD..... | 9 |
| V. | ARGUMENT | 9 |
| | A. This Case Is Justiciable..... | 9 |
| | B. The Apportionment Exclusion Order Is Unconstitutional | 14 |
| | 1. The Constitution’s Text and Structure Require Apportionment Based on Total Population..... | 14 |
| | 2. The Constitution’s Drafting History Confirms that Apportionment Must Be Based on Total Population..... | 17 |
| | 3. Consistent Historical Practice Confirms that the Constitution Requires Apportionment Based on Total Population | 20 |
| | 4. Defendants Have No Discretion to Exclude Undocumented Immigrant Residents from the Apportionment Base | 27 |
| | C. The Apportionment Exclusion Order Is Ultra Vires | 29 |
| | 1. The Order Violates the Census Act | 29 |
| | 2. The Order Violates the Reapportionment Act | 31 |
| | D. The Apportionment Exclusion Order Violates the Constitution’s Separation of Powers | 33 |
| | E. Plaintiffs Are Entitled to Declaratory Relief and Permanent Injunctions..... | 34 |
| VI. | CONCLUSION..... | 35 |

1
2
3
4
5
6
7
8
9 10
11 12 13 14 15 16
17 18 19 20 21
22
23
24
25
26 27
28

TABLE OF AUTHORITIES

Page(s)

CASES

Alabama v. U.S. Dep’t of Commerce,
No. 18-cv-00772 (D. Ala. Aug. 3, 2020), ECF No. 158.....12

Ariz. State Legislature v. Ariz. Indep. Redistricting Comm’n,
135 S. Ct. 2652 (2015).....16

Baldrige v. Shapiro,
455 U.S. 345 (1982).....5

Bowsher v. Synar,
478 U.S. 714 (1986).....33

Clapper v. Amnesty Int’l. USA,
568 U.S. 398 (2013).....9

In re Coleman,
560 F.3d 1000 (9th Cir. 2009)13

Davis v. Fed. Election Comm’n,
554 U.S. 724 (2008).....9

Dep’t of Commerce v. New York,
139 S. Ct. 2551 (2019)..... passim

Dep’t of Commerce v. U.S. House of Representatives,
525 U.S. 316 (1999).....10, 11, 14, 32

Dist. of Columbia v. Heller,
554 U.S. 570 (2008).....14

eBay Inc. v. MercExchange, L.L.C.,
547 U.S. 388 (2006).....35

Erlenbaugh v. United States,
409 U.S. 239 (1972).....29

Evenwel v. Abbott,
136 S. Ct. 1120 (2016).....19, 21, 26

Fed’n for Am. Immigration Reform v. Klutznick,
486 F. Supp. 564 (D.D.C. 1980).....26

1 Fong Yue Ting v. United States,
 2 149 U.S. 698 (1893).....17

3 Franklin v. Massachusetts,
 4 505 U.S. 788 (1992).....27, 28, 32

5 Garza v. Cty. of Los Angeles,
 6 918 F.2d 763 (9th Cir. 1990)19

7 Goldie’s Bookstore v. Superior Ct.,
 8 739 F.2d 466 (9th Cir. 1984)35

9 Indep. Living Ctr. of S. California, Inc. v. Shewry,
 10 543 F.3d 1050 (9th Cir. 2008)10, 11

11 INS v. Chadha,
 12 462 U.S. 919 (1983).....33

13 Kravitz v. U.S. Dep’t of Commerce,
 14 366 F. Supp. 3d 681 (D. Md. 2019).....7

15 Kravitz v. U.S. Dep’t of Commerce,
 16 382 F. Supp. 3d 393 (D. Md. 2019).....7

17 Lujan v. Defs. of Wildlife,
 18 504 U.S. 555 (1992).....9

19 Martin v. Hunter’s Lessee,
 20 14 U.S. 304 (1816).....17

21 Medellin v. Texas,
 22 552 U.S. 491 (2008).....5

23 MedImmune, Inc. v. Genentech, Inc.,
 24 549 U.S. 118 (2007).....34

25 Monsanto Co. v. Geertson Seed Farms,
 26 561 U.S. 139 (2010).....35

27 Nelson v. NASA,
 28 530 F.3d 865 (9th Cir. 2008), rev’d on other grounds, 562 U.S. 134 (2011).....35

New York v. Dep’t of Commerce,
 351 F. Supp. 3d 502 (S.D.N.Y. 2019), aff’d and rev’d in part sub nom. Dep’t of Commerce, 139 S. Ct. 25517

New York v. Trump,
 No. 20-cv-5770 (S.D.N.Y. Aug. 19, 2020), ECF No. 118.....12

| | | |
|----|--|---------------|
| 1 | Plyler v. Doe , | |
| 2 | 457 U.S. 202 (1982)..... | 15 |
| 3 | Portland Police Ass’n v. City of Portland , | |
| 4 | 658 F.2d 1272 (9th Cir. 1981) | 13 |
| 5 | Seila Law LLC v. Consumer Fin. Prot. Bureau , | |
| 6 | 140 S. Ct. 2183 (2020)..... | 21 |
| 7 | State of California v. Ross , | |
| 8 | 358 F. Supp. 3d 965 (N.D. Cal. 2019)..... | 7 |
| 9 | State of California v. Ross , | |
| 10 | 362 F. Supp. 3d 749 (N.D. Cal. 2018)..... | 14 |
| 11 | Susan B. Anthony List v. Driehaus , | |
| 12 | 573 U.S. 149 (2014)..... | 9 |
| 13 | Thomas v. Anchorage Equal Rights Comm’n , | |
| 14 | 220 F.3d 1134 (9th Cir. 2000) | 12 |
| 15 | U.S. Dep’t of Commerce v. Montana , | |
| 16 | 503 U.S. 442 (1992)..... | 32 |
| 17 | United States v. Sprague , | |
| 18 | 282 U.S. 716 (1931)..... | 14 |
| 19 | Utah v. Evans , | |
| 20 | 536 U.S. 452 (2002)..... | 5 |
| 21 | Wesberry v. Sanders , | |
| 22 | 376 U.S. 1 (1964)..... | 18, 26 |
| 23 | Wisconsin v. City of New York , | |
| 24 | 517 U.S. 1 (1996)..... | 2, 21, 26 |
| 25 | Yick Wo v. Hopkins , | |
| 26 | 118 U.S. 356 (1886)..... | 15 |
| 27 | Youngstown Sheet & Tube Co. v. Sawyer , | |
| 28 | 343 U.S. 579 (1952)..... | 33, 34 |
| | Zadvydas v. Davis , | |
| | 533 U.S. 678 (2001)..... | 16 |
| | STATUTES | |
| | 2 U.S.C. § 2a..... | 3 |
| | 2 U.S.C. § 2a(a)..... | passim |

1 2 U.S.C. § 2a(b)4
 2 13 U.S.C. § 23
 3 13 U.S.C. § 141(a) passim
 4 13 U.S.C. § 141(b) passim
 5 28 U.S.C. § 2201(a)34
 6 Pub. L. No. 83-740, 68 Stat. 1012, 1020 (1954).....30
 7 9 Stat. 462, 462-65 (1850)22
 8 Wash. Rev. Code § 44.05.090.....5
 9

10 CONSTITUTIONAL PROVISIONS

11 U.S. Const. amend. XIV, § 117
 12 U.S. Const. amend. XIV, § 21, 3, 14, 16
 13 U.S. Const. amend. XIV, § 316, 17
 14 U.S. Const. art. I, § 1.....33
 15 U.S. Const. art. I, § 2, cl. 2.....16
 16 U.S. Const. art. I, § 2, cl. 3.....3, 14, 16
 17 U.S. Const. art. I, § 3, cl. 3.....16
 18 U.S. Const. art. II, § 1, cl. 24
 19 U.S. Const. art. II, § 1, cl. 517
 20 U.S. Const. art. II, § 32, 33, 34
 21 N.J. Const. art. IV, § 2, ¶¶ 1, 3.....5
 22 Okla. Const. art. V, § 10A5
 23 Tex. Const. art. III, § 26.....5
 24 W. Va. Const. art. VI, § 45
 25

26 REGULATIONS AND OTHER AUTHORITIES

27 83 Fed. Reg. 5525, 5526 n.1, 5533 (Feb. 8, 2018)28
 28

1 Collecting Information About Citizenship Status in Connection With the
2 Decennial Census, 84 Fed. Reg. 33821 (July 16, 2019).....8

3 Defs.’ Reply Br., Fed’n for Am. Immigration Reform v. Klutznick,
4 No. 79-3269, 1980 WL 683642 (D.D.C. Jan. 3, 1980).....24

5 Excluding Illegal Aliens From the Apportionment Base Following the 2020
6 Census, 85 Fed. Reg. 44,679, 44,680 (published July 23, 2020)..... passim

7 Legal Effectiveness of a Presidential Directive, as Compared to an Executive 8 Order,
9 24 Op. O.L.C. 29 (2000).....5

10 Method of Determining “Indians Not Taxed”,
11 57 Interior Dec. 195, 1940 WL 4171 (DOI 1940).....3

12

13

14

15

16

17

18

19 20

21

22

23

24

25

26

27

28

1
2
3
4
5
6
7
8
9 10 11
12

I. INTRODUCTION

For 230 years, all three branches of government have recognized and respected the fundamental rule that, except where a class of persons is expressly excluded by the Constitution itself, the apportionment of seats in the House of Representatives must be based on the total number of persons residing in each State. On July 21, 2020, President Trump announced a policy that disposes of that constitutional rule through executive fiat. With a pen stroke, President Trump ordered the exclusion of all persons “who are not in a lawful immigration status” from “the reapportionment of Representatives following the 2020 census,” and directed the Secretary of Commerce to provide him with information “to carry out” this objective. Excluding Illegal Aliens From the Apportionment Base Following the 2020 Census, 85 Fed. Reg. 44,679, 44,680 (published July 23, 2020) (Dkt. No. 1-1) (the “Apportionment Exclusion Order”).

President Trump’s Order is manifestly unconstitutional. The Order violates the plain language of the Apportionment Clause of Article I, as amended by the Fourteenth Amendment, which requires apportioning Representatives “among the several States according to their respective numbers” by “counting the whole number of persons in each State.” U.S. Const. amend. XIV, § 2 (emphasis added). It is contrary to the Constitution’s structure, drafting history, and judicial construction, all of which confirm that the drafters understood “persons in each State” to mean all persons residing in each State—not just those residents who are voters, citizens, or legal residents. And it upends over two centuries of unbroken interpretation and practice—by Presidents of both parties—of including in the apportionment base all persons residing in each State regardless of voting, citizenship, or immigration status. Text, structure, history, and practice all lead to the same conclusion: The Constitution forbids the President from categorically excluding undocumented immigrants from the apportionment base.

The Apportionment Exclusion Order also violates the plain text of the Census Act and the Reapportionment Act. The Census Act directs the Secretary of Commerce to administer the census and report to the President “[t]he tabulation of total population by States . . . as required for the apportionment of Representatives in Congress among the several States.” 13 U.S.C.

1 § 141(b). The Reapportionment Act, in turn, requires the President to transmit to Congress “a 2 statement showing the whole number of persons in each State, excluding Indians not taxed, as
3 ascertained under the . . . decennial census of the population, and the number of Representatives
4 to which each State would be entitled under an apportionment of the then existing number of 5 Representatives by the method known as the method of equal proportions.” 2 U.S.C. § 2a(a).
6 The Order violates the Census Act by requiring the Secretary to transmit to the President
7 something other than the “tabulation of total population.” And the Order violates the 8 Reapportionment Act by mandating an apportionment based on something other than the 9 “decennial census of the population,” and calculated by something other than application of the 10 mathematical “method of equal proportions.”

11 Finally, the Apportionment Exclusion Order violates fundamental separation of powers
12 principles enshrined in the Constitution. The Constitution’s Enumeration Clause, as amended by 13 the Fourteenth Amendment, “vests Congress with virtually unlimited discretion in conducting 14 the decennial ‘actual Enumeration.’” Dep’t of Commerce v. New York, 139 S. Ct. 2551, 2566
15 (2019) (quoting Wisconsin v. City of New York, 517 U.S. 1, 19 (1996)). Congress exercised this 16 discretion by enacting the Census Act and the Reapportionment Act, which together implement 17 the constitutional mandates that the decennial census count all persons residing in each State and 18 that the apportionment base include all persons residing in each State. By proclaiming the 19 President’s intent to exclude undocumented immigrants from the apportionment base, the Order
20 defies the will of Congress. The President’s failure to “take Care that the Laws be faithfully 21 executed,” U.S. Const. art. II, § 3, thus violates the Constitution’s separation of powers.

22 In short, the Apportionment Exclusion Order is unconstitutional, violates multiple 23 statutes, and threatens deep-rooted democratic principles. Plaintiffs respectfully ask this Court to 24 grant summary judgment and issue declaratory and injunctive relief to stop the Order from 25 causing profound harms to Plaintiffs and the public at large.
26
27
28

1 II. STATEMENT OF ISSUES TO BE DECIDED

2 1. Whether Plaintiffs are entitled to summary judgment on their claim that the
3 Apportionment Exclusion Order violates Article I and the Fourteenth Amendment of the U.S.
4 Constitution.

5 2. Whether Plaintiffs are entitled to summary judgment on their claim that the 6 Apportionment Exclusion Order is ultra vires under 13 U.S.C. § 141 and 2 U.S.C. § 2a.

7 3. Whether the California Plaintiffs are entitled to summary judgment on their claim
8 that the Apportionment Exclusion Order violates the Constitution’s separation of powers.

9 III. BACKGROUND

10 A. Congressional Apportionment and the Decennial Census

11 Aside from two infamous exceptions, the Constitution has always required counting 12 every person living in each State for purposes of apportioning seats in the House of 13 Representatives. Originally, the Apportionment Clause directed that House seats “shall be 14 apportioned” among the States “according to their respective Numbers, which shall be 15 determined by adding to the whole Number of free Persons, including those bound to Service for 16 a Term of Years, and excluding Indians not taxed, three fifths of all other Persons.” U.S. Const.
17 art. I, § 2, cl. 3. The Fourteenth Amendment eliminated the three-fifths exception and the 18 reference to “free” persons, but retained the core determinant for apportionment: “counting the 19 whole number of persons in each State.” Id. amend. XIV, § 2 (emphasis added).¹

20 The Constitution also directly links the apportionment process to the decennial census.
21 To determine the population and enable reapportionment, the Enumeration Clause mandates that 22 an “actual Enumeration” be taken every ten years “in such Manner as [Congress] shall by Law
23 direct.” Id. art. I, § 2, cl. 3. Congress has exercised that authority by creating the Census Bureau
24 and tasking the Secretary of Commerce with administering the decennial census. See 13 U.S.C.
25 §§ 2, 141(a).

26
27 ¹ The Fourteenth Amendment also retained “excluding Indians not taxed,” but that phrase no
28 longer applies to anyone. See, e.g., Sol. Op. M-31039, Method of Determining “Indians Not Taxed”, 57 Interior Dec. 195, 1940 WL 4171, at *12 (DOI 1940) (“Since all Indians are today subject to taxation by the Federal Government, there are no longer Indians not subject to taxation.” (citation omitted)).

1 To implement the Enumeration Clause’s mandate, Congress has also specified the 2 timeline and procedures for the decennial census and the apportionment process. Under the 3 Census Act, the Secretary is required to take a decennial census “as of” April 1, 2020. See id.
 4 § 141(a). Within nine months from that date—currently January 1, 2021—the Secretary must 5 report to the President the completed “tabulation of total population by States . . . as required for 6 the apportionment of Representatives in Congress among the several States.” Id. § 141(b). After 7 that, the Reapportionment Act provides that the President must—by January 10, 2021, if the next 8 Congress starts its session as scheduled—“transmit to the Congress a statement showing the 9 whole number of persons in each State . . . as ascertained under the . . . decennial census of the 10 population, and the number of Representatives to which each State would be entitled” using “the 11 method of equal proportions.” 2 U.S.C. § 2a(a). Finally, the Clerk of the House of 12 Representatives must, within 15 calendar days, “send to the executive of each State a certificate 13 of the number of Representatives to which such State is entitled.” Id. § 2a(b).

14 The decennial census and reapportionment have significant and long-lasting implications
 15 for democratic governance at both the federal and state levels. The process determines how 16 many Representatives in Congress each State will have for the next decade. Id. The census and 17 apportionment numbers also determine the number of electors that each State will have in the 18 Electoral College—again, a decision that lasts a full decade. See U.S. Const. art. II, § 1, cl. 2.
 19 And the census numbers have enormous economic and intra-state political effects, as “[t]he 20 population count derived from the census is used . . . also to allocate federal funds to the States
 21 and to draw electoral districts.” Dep’t of Commerce, 139 S. Ct. at 2561.² Numerous states also 22

23
 24 ² In FY2017 alone, “316 federal spending programs relied on 2010 Census-derived data to 25 distribute $1.5 trillion to state and local governments, nonprofits, businesses, and households 26 across the nation.” Ex. 1, Andrew Reamer, Counting for Dollars 2020 - The Role of the 27 Decennial Census in the Geographic Distribution of Federal Funds Brief 7: Comprehensive 28 Accounting of Census-Guided Federal Spending (FY2017) Part B: State Estimates, https://gwipp.gwu.edu/sites/g/files/zaxdzs2181/f/downloads/Counting%20for%20Dollars%2020%20-%20Comprehensive%20Accounting_Report%207B%20Feb%202020%20rev.pdf; see also Ex. 2, 2020 Census Count Guides Funding of New Roads and Bridges, U.S. Census Bureau
 (Dec. 4, 2019), <https://www.census.gov/library/stories/2019/12/2020-census-count-guides-funding-of-new-roads-and-bridges.html>. All exhibits are attached to the Declaration of Shannon
 D. Lankenau, filed concurrently herewith.

1 require that their intra-state legislative districts be drawn using the census numbers. See, e.g.,
 2 N.J. Const. art. IV, § 2, ¶¶ 1, 3; Okla. Const. art. V, § 10A; Tex. Const. art. III, § 26; W. Va.
 3 Const. art. VI, § 4; Wash. Rev. Code § 44.05.090.

4 The census and apportionment process thus have a foundational “constitutional purpose”
 5 and serve “important and valuable functions for the benefit of the country as a whole.” Baldrige
 6 v. Shapiro, 455 U.S. 345, 353 (1982). For these reasons, there is “a strong constitutional interest
 7 in accuracy” when conducting the census and distributing political power among the States.
 8 Utah v. Evans, 536 U.S. 452, 478 (2002). In addition to that constitutional interest, the Census
 9 Act also imposes “a duty to conduct a census that is accurate and that fairly accounts for the 10 crucial representational rights that depend on the census and apportionment.” Dep’t of 11 Commerce, 139 S. Ct. at 2569 (internal quotation marks omitted).

12 B. The July 21, 2020 Apportionment Exclusion Order

13 On July 21, 2020, President Trump issued the Apportionment Exclusion Order, 14 announcing that “it is the policy of the United States to exclude” undocumented immigrants from 15 the apportionment base “to the maximum extent feasible and consistent with the discretion 16 delegated to the executive branch.” 85 Fed. Reg. at 44,680.³ The Order announces the 17 President’s belief that “[e]xcluding” undocumented immigrants “from the apportionment base is 18 more consonant with the principles of representative democracy underpinning our system of 19 Government,” and asserts that “[a]ffording congressional representation, and therefore formal 20 political influence, to States on account of the presence within their borders of” undocumented 21 immigrants “undermines those principles.” Id. To implement this policy, the Order directs the 22 Secretary of Commerce, “[i]n preparing his report to the President under” 13 U.S.C. § 141(b), to 23 “take all appropriate action, consistent with the Constitution and other applicable law, to provide 24 information permitting the President, to the extent practicable,” to exclude undocumented
 25

26 ³ Although the Apportionment Exclusion Order is styled as a “Memorandum,” there is “no
 27 substantive difference in the legal effectiveness of an executive order and a presidential directive 28 that is styled other than as an executive order.” Legal Effectiveness of a Presidential Directive, as Compared to an Executive Order, 24 Op. O.L.C. 29 (2000); see also Medellin v. Texas, 552
 U.S. 491, 524 (2008) (analyzing presidential memorandum’s legal effects under the framework for executive action).

1 immigrants from the apportionment base. Id.

2 The Order recognizes that excluding undocumented immigrants from the apportionment
3 base will reduce the number of Representatives from States with larger populations of 4 undocumented immigrants. Indeed, the Order explicitly intends this result. It points to “one
5 State [that] is home to more than 2.2 million illegal aliens, constituting more than 6 percent of 6 the State’s entire population,” and asserts that excluding undocumented immigrants from 7 apportionment would cost this State “two or three” Representatives. Id. As explained, infra at 8 9-10, that targeted State is California.

9 The President’s sole asserted legal justification for the Order is that the Constitution’s
10 requirement to apportion based on “‘persons in each State, excluding Indians not taxed’ . . . has 11 never been understood to include . . . every individual physically present within a State’s 12 boundaries at the time of the census.” Id. at 44,679. The Order posits that the phrase has been 13 interpreted “to mean that only the ‘inhabitants’ of each State should be included.” Id. It
14 concludes that the President has the authority to determine who is an “inhabitant”—and that this 15 discretion permits the categorical exclusion of undocumented immigrants from the 16 apportionment base. Id.

17 C. The Backdrop to the Order

18 The Apportionment Exclusion Order was issued against the backdrop of extensive
19 litigation over Defendants’ attempt to add a citizenship question to the 2020 census
20 questionnaire. In March 2018, Secretary Ross announced that the 2020 census questionnaire
21 would include a question on citizenship status.⁴ The press release and memo accompanying the 22 announcement asserted that the question was being added at the request of the Department of 23 Justice “to help enforce the Voting Rights Act” (VRA).⁵

24
25 ⁴ See Ex. 3, U.S. Department of Commerce Announces Reinstatement of Citizenship Question to 26 the 2020 Decennial Census, U.S. Dep’t of Commerce (Mar. 26, 2018), <https://www.commerce.gov/news/press-releases/2018/03/us-department-commerce-announces-reinstatement-citizenship-question-2020>.

27 ⁵ Id.; see also Ex. 4, Memorandum from Wilbur L. Ross, Jr., Sec’y of Commerce, to Karen 28 Dunn Kelley, Under Sec’y of Commerce for Econ. Affairs, at 1 (Mar. 26, 2018), https://www.commerce.gov/sites/default/files/2018-03-26_2.pdf.

1 A number of plaintiffs, including California, brought suit, challenging the decision under
 2 the Administrative Procedure Act and the Constitution. Plaintiffs argued, among other things,
 3 that Defendants’ real motives in adding the question were to depress response rates among 4 minorities and to enable legislative districting based on citizenship numbers instead of 5 population numbers. But during litigation—and in sworn testimony before Congress—Secretary
 6 Ross stuck to the DOJ-request and VRA-enforcement story. See, e.g., New York v. Dep’t of 7 Commerce, 351 F. Supp. 3d 502, 546-47 (S.D.N.Y. 2019), aff’d and rev’d in part sub nom. Dep’t
 8 of Commerce, 139 S. Ct. 2551.

9 After a bench trial, the District Court for the Southern District of New York concluded
 10 that Secretary Ross’s explanation and sworn testimony “was materially inaccurate.” Id. at 547.
 11 The evidence established that the Secretary had sought to add the citizenship question from the 12 outset of his tenure at the Department of Commerce, and that neither DOJ’s request nor 13 enforcement of the VRA had motivated those efforts. See id. at 548-50. The evidence also 14 revealed that, around March 2017, Secretary Ross spoke with “various ‘senior Administration 15 officials’” about adding the citizenship question—and that those conversations included 16 discussions about “the potential effect on ‘congressional apportionment’” from adding the 17 question to the census. Id. at 549-50.⁶ The court held that Secretary Ross’s explanation was 18 pretextual and that his decision to add the question violated the Administrative Procedure Act, 19 and enjoined him from adding the question. Id. at 641, 660, 679.⁷ While these issues were 20 pending before the Supreme Court, new evidence emerged that showed the citizenship question
 21 was added “possi[bly], if not likely” based on discriminatory animus—namely “to advantage
 22 Republicans by diminishing Hispanics’ political power.” Kravitz v. U.S. Dep’t of Commerce,

24 _____
 25 ⁶ See also Ex. 5, Bryan Lowry, That Citizenship Question on the 2020 Census? Kobach Says He 26 Pitched It to Trump, Kan. City Star (Mar. 27, 2018), <https://www.kansascity.com/news/politics-government/article207007581.html>.

27 ⁷ This Court likewise struck down Secretary Ross’s decision to add a citizenship question. State
 28 of California v. Ross, 358 F. Supp. 3d 965, 973-76 (N.D. Cal. 2019) (vacated and remanded on other grounds); see also Kravitz v. U.S. Dep’t of Commerce, 366 F. Supp. 3d 681, 691, 756 (D.
 Md. 2019) (vacated and remanded on other grounds).

1 382 F. Supp. 3d 393, 400 (D. Md. 2019).⁸

2 The Supreme Court affirmed in relevant part. The Court concluded that it could not
3 “ignore the disconnect between the decision made and the explanation given,” and observed that 4 the VRA “enforcement rationale . . . seems to have been contrived.” Dep’t of Commerce, 139 S.
5 Ct. at 2575. This decision marked “the first time the Court has ever invalidated an agency action
6 as ‘pretextual.’” Id. at 2583 (Thomas, J., concurring in part and dissenting in part).

7 Shortly after this decision, President Trump issued an executive order requiring all
8 federal departments and agencies to provide the Department of Commerce with administrative 9 records to facilitate determining citizenship status in connection with the census. See Collecting
10 Information About Citizenship Status in Connection With the Decennial Census, 84 Fed. Reg.
11 33821 (July 16, 2019). In his signing statement, the President declared that “[t]he Census
12 Bureau can use this information, along with information collected through the questionnaire, to 13 create the official census.”⁹

14 President Trump expressly invoked this history when he issued the Apportionment
15 Exclusion Order. In an accompanying signing statement, he asserted that “[l]ast summer in the 16 Rose Garden, I told the American people that I would not back down in my effort to determine 17 the citizenship status of the United States population.”¹⁰ He then explained that the 18 Apportionment Exclusion Order represented a formal action to continue that same effort:
19 “Today, I am following through on that commitment by directing the Secretary of Commerce to 20 exclude illegal aliens from the apportionment base following the 2020 census.”¹¹

23 ⁸ See Pls.’ Mot. for Order to Show Cause, No. 18-cv-2921, ECF No. 595 (May 30, 2019)
24 (detailing these evidentiary revelations); Ex. 6, Michael Wines, Deceased G.O.P. Strategist’s
25 Hard Drives Reveal New Details on the Census Citizenship Question, N.Y. Times (May 30, 2019), <https://www.nytimes.com/2019/05/30/us/census-citizenship-question-hofeller.html> (similar).

26 ⁹ Ex. 7, Donald J. Trump, Remarks on Citizenship and the Census (July 11, 2019),
<https://www.govinfo.gov/content/pkg/DCPD-201900465/pdf/DCPD-201900465.pdf>.

27 ¹⁰ Ex. 8, Statement From the President Regarding Apportionment (July 21, 2020), 28 <https://www.whitehouse.gov/briefings-statements/statement-president-regarding-apportionment>.

¹¹ Id.

1 IV. LEGAL STANDARD

2 Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 56(a) provides that the “court shall grant summary
3 judgment if the movant shows that there is no genuine dispute as to any material fact and the 4 movant is entitled to judgment as a matter of law.”

5 V. ARGUMENT

6 A. This Case Is Justiciable

7 To satisfy standing, a plaintiff must “present an injury that is concrete, particularized, and 8 actual or imminent; fairly traceable to the defendant’s challenged behavior; and likely to be 9 redressed by a favorable ruling.” Davis v. Fed. Election Comm’n, 554 U.S. 724, 733 (2008). To 10 establish standing at summary judgment, a plaintiff “must set forth by affidavit or other evidence
11 specific facts.” Clapper v. Amnesty Int’l. USA, 568 U.S. 398, 412 (2013) (quotations and citation 12 omitted). But for standing purposes, these facts “will be taken to be true.” Lujan v. Defs. of 13 Wildlife, 504 U.S. 555, 561 (1992).

14 The State of California has established injury sufficient for standing. When a State 15 “anticipate[s] losing a seat in Congress,” that “diminishment of political representation” is an 16 injury suffered by the State. Dep’t of Commerce, 139 S. Ct. at 2565. This type of future injury
17 suffices for standing purposes “if the threatened injury is certainly impending, or there is a 18 substantial risk that the harm will occur.” Id. (citing Susan B. Anthony List v. Driehaus, 573 U.S.
19 149, 158 (2014)).

20 The exclusion of undocumented immigrants from the apportionment base will cause
21 California to receive fewer seats in the House of Representatives than it is entitled to under the 22 Constitution. A comprehensive statistical analysis by Dr. Ruth Gilgenbach shows that under a
23 wide range of demographic assumptions, California is “highly likely”—at a 90% confidence
24 interval—to lose at least one seat in the House. Gilgenbach Decl. ¶¶ 5, 22-23, 29-30, 32-33, 40.

25 President Trump has conceded this injury in the Apportionment Exclusion Order itself.
26 As noted, the Order expressly intends to deprive certain States of Representatives, and 27 recognizes the effect on California specifically. It states that excluding undocumented 28

1 immigrants from apportionment will eliminate “more than 2.2 million illegal aliens” from one
 2 State’s apportionment base and cost that State “two or three” Representatives. 85 Fed. Reg. at 3 44680. According to recent estimates from the Pew Research Center, California has “the largest 4 population” of undocumented immigrants “at 2.2 million.”¹² Other than Texas, no State is
 5 estimated to have even half as many undocumented immigrants as California.¹³ The Order’s
 6 reference is, unmistakably, to California.¹⁴

7 Thus, based on scientific analyses and Defendant President Trump’s own statements, the 8 State of California has established injury for standing.¹⁵

9 The individual and organizational Plaintiffs in the San Jose action have also established
 10 injury sufficient for standing. The Supreme Court has already determined that materially 11 identical plaintiffs have standing to sue under circumstances just like this case. In Department of 12 Commerce v. U.S. House of Representatives, various state residents brought suit seeking to 13 enjoin the Department of Commerce’s decision to use statistical sampling during the 2000
 14 decennial census. 525 U.S. 316 (1999).¹⁶ The Court held that those plaintiffs had standing
 15

16 ¹² Ex. 9, Pew Research Center, U.S. Unauthorized Immigrant Population Estimates By State, 2016 (Feb. 5, 2019), <https://www.pewresearch.org/hispanic/interactives/u-s-unauthorized-immigrants-by-state/>.

17 ¹³ Id.; see also Ex. 10, Office of Immigr. Statistics, U.S. Dep’t of Homeland Sec., Population Estimates, Illegal Alien Population Residing in the United States: January 2015 at Table 3 (Dec. 2018), https://www.dhs.gov/sites/default/files/publications/18_1214_PLCY_pops-est-report.pdf (Department of Homeland Security estimating California to have the largest population of undocumented immigrants and Texas following with the second highest).

18 ¹⁴ In addition to Dr. Gilgenbach’s analysis, a Pew Research Center study has confirmed that the 19 Apportionment Exclusion Order will achieve its stated goal of causing States like California to 20 lose representation in Congress. The study determined that “[i]f unauthorized immigrants were 21 excluded from the apportionment count, California . . . [would] end up with one less 22 congressional seat than [it] would have been awarded based on population change alone.” Ex.
 23 11, Jeffrey S. Passel and D’Vera Cohn, How Removing Unauthorized Immigrants From Census Statistics Could Affect House Reapportionment, Pew Research Center (July 24, 2020), 24 <https://www.pewresearch.org/fact-tank/2020/07/24/how-removing-unauthorized-immigrants-from-census-statistics-could-affect-house-reapportionment/>.

25 ¹⁵ The State of California’s showing of standing suffices for all of the California Plaintiffs.
 26 “[O]nce the court determines that one of the plaintiffs has standing, it need not decide the 27 standing of the others.” Indep. Living Ctr. of S. California, Inc. v. Shewry, 543 F.3d 1050, 1065
 28 (9th Cir. 2008); see also Dep’t of Commerce, 139 S. Ct. at 2565.

¹⁶ The U.S. House of Representatives also brought suit, and that case was consolidated with the case brought by state residents. See U.S. House of Representatives, 525 U.S. at 320-21.

1 because they demonstrated that the use of statistical sampling in determining the apportionment
 2 base was likely to dilute their voting power. One of the plaintiffs lived and voted in Indiana, and 3 the evidence showed that the challenged order was likely to result in that State losing one
 4 Representative. The Court concluded that this plaintiff’s “expected loss of a Representative to 5 the United States Congress undoubtedly satisfies the injury-in-fact requirement of Article III
 6 standing.” Id. at 331 (emphasis added).

7 That analysis applies with equal force to this case. Here, standing is satisfied because the 8 Apportionment Exclusion Order will, among other things, dilute the voting power of Plaintiffs 9 Liccardo and Yilma. Both Plaintiffs reside in California, where they regularly exercise their 10 right to vote. See Decl. of Sam Liccardo ¶ 3; Decl. of Zerihoun Yilma ¶ 3. And like the State of 11 Indiana in U.S. House of Representatives, Liccardo and Yilma’s State (California) is expected to 12 lose “a Representative to the United States Congress.” 525 U.S. at 331.¹⁷

13 In addition to the apportionment injury, the San Jose Plaintiffs have also shown that the 14 Order is presently harming them by chilling the response to the census. See Barreto Decl. ¶¶ 14-
 15 31, 34-83. The governmental and organizational Plaintiffs are, as a direct result, expending 16 substantial resources to educate those in immigrant and minority communities that their 17 participation in the census is important, and to encourage them to respond to the census. See,
 18 e.g., BAJI Decl. ¶¶ 17-20; Barreto Decl. ¶¶ 37-39, 44. The San Jose Plaintiffs thus have, like the 19 California Plaintiffs, “undoubtedly” established an injury-in-fact that is sufficient under Supreme 20 Court precedent. U.S. House of Representatives, 525 U.S. at 332.

21 Defendants have argued in related litigation that it is unclear whether Plaintiffs’ asserted
 22 injuries will ever occur because the Apportionment Exclusion Order includes qualifying 23 language that renders its ultimate effect uncertain. The Order directs the exclusion of 24 undocumented immigrants from the apportionment base “to [1] the maximum extent feasible and 25 _____

26 ¹⁷ The harms to these Plaintiffs establish the San Jose Plaintiffs’ standing. See Shewry, 543 F.3d
 27 at 1065. But other San Jose Plaintiffs will suffer harm as well. For example, Plaintiff Rodney 28 Ellis resides in Texas where he is registered to vote and regularly exercises his right to vote. See Decl. of Rodney Ellis ¶ 4. Texas, like California, is “highly likely” to “lose a congressional seat” if undocumented immigrants are excluded from the apportionment base. Gilgenbach Decl. ¶¶ 5, 22-23, 29, 30, 32-33, 38-40.

1 [2] consistent with the discretion delegated to the executive branch.” 85 Fed. Reg. at 44680.
 2 According to Defendants, those qualifications make any claim speculative because the effect of 3 the Order ultimately “depends on what is feasible and on how the President exercises his 4 discretion.” Defs’ Br. in Response to the Ct.’s July 21, 2020 Order and Request for Scheduling
 5 Order at 3, Alabama v. U.S. Dep’t of Commerce, No. 18-cv-00772, (D. Ala. Aug. 3, 2020), ECF
 6 No. 158; see also Br. in Support of Defs’ Mot. to Dismiss at 6-11, New York v. Trump, No. 20-
 7 cv-5770 (S.D.N.Y. Aug. 19, 2020), ECF No. 118.

8 Whether framed in terms of standing or ripeness, Defendants’ argument fails. The 9 inquiry, either way, is the same—whether the issues presented are “definite and concrete, not 10 hypothetical or abstract.” Thomas v. Anchorage Equal Rights Comm’n, 220 F.3d 1134, 1139
 11 (9th Cir. 2000) (en banc). The Order establishes that there is nothing abstract or speculative 12 about Defendants’ planned exclusion of undocumented immigrants from the apportionment base.
 13 It states that the President has “determined” it is proper to exclude undocumented immigrants, 14 and announces that it is the “policy of the United States” “[f]or the purpose of the 15 reapportionment of Representatives following the 2020 census . . . to exclude from the 16 apportionment base aliens who are not in a lawful immigration status.” 85 Fed. Reg. at 44680 17 (emphasis added). And in an accompanying signing statement, President Trump confirmed that 18 the Apportionment Exclusion Order is an authoritative directive carrying the force and effect of 19 law: “Today I am . . . directing the Secretary of Commerce to exclude illegal aliens from the 20 apportionment base following the 2020 census.”¹⁸ The President’s intention to exclude all 21 undocumented immigrants from the apportionment base, and his direction to the other 22 Defendants to aid him in this effort, could not be clearer. Absent judicial action, there is every 23 reason to believe that an unconstitutional and ultra vires apportionment will occur “[o]n the first 24 day, or within one week” of the first legislative session of the 117th Congress, 2 U.S.C.
 25 § 2a(a)—on or within a week from January 3, 2021.
 26

27
 28 ¹⁸ Ex. 8, White House, Statement From the President Regarding Apportionment (July 21, 2020),
<https://www.whitehouse.gov/briefings-statements/statement-president-regarding-apportionment/>
 (emphasis added).

1 Defendants' claim that the controversy is nonetheless unripe is doctrinally incorrect and 2 logically unsound—and plainly just a tactic to evade judicial review. Qualifying an executive
3 action by stating that it will be carried out only “to the maximum extent feasible” is no
4 qualification at all. Of course this Order—like any order—can be executed only to the extent
5 feasible; no order can be carried out beyond the maximum extent feasible. The Apportionment
6 Exclusion Order would thus be no different without the feasibility language, and other executive 7 orders without that language would be no different with it.

8 The second qualification—to the extent “consistent with the discretion delegated to the 9 executive branch”—is likewise meaningless, because the President has already stated that he 10 believes excluding undocumented immigrants from the apportionment base is within his 11 executive discretion: “The discretion delegated to the executive branch to determine who 12 qualifies as an ‘inhabitant’ includes authority to exclude from the apportionment base aliens who 13 are not in a lawful immigration status.” 85 Fed. Reg. at 44679. The mere possibility that the 14 President might change his mind cannot defeat ripeness. Compare, e.g., In re Coleman, 560 F.3d
15 1000, 1005 (9th Cir. 2009) (case was ripe even though it involved “a single factual contingency”
16 that might not occur “at all”), with Portland Police Ass’n v. City of Portland, 658 F.2d 1272, 17 1274 (9th Cir. 1981) (case was unripe because it involved “a series of contingencies” and 18 plaintiffs presented no credible threat of harm).

19 In addition, the Order is presently harming Plaintiffs by chilling the response to the 20 census. See Barreto Decl. ¶¶ 14-31, 34-83. The undercount that the Order is currently causing 21 and Plaintiffs' diversions of staff and financial resources to mitigate that undercount are neither 22 speculative nor uncertain. See id. ¶¶ 37-39, 44; see also BAJI Decl. ¶¶ 17-20.

23 Finally, Plaintiffs' injuries are traceable to Defendants and redressable by a favorable
24 ruling. Defendants' enforcement of the Apportionment Exclusion Order in the upcoming 25 reapportionment will cause the State of California to lose a seat in Congress, which in turn will 26 dilute Plaintiffs Liccardo and Yilma's votes. Those harms are redressable by a favorable ruling
27 that declares that the Apportionment Exclusion Order is unlawful and enjoins certain Defendants
28

1 from carrying it out. See Dep't of Commerce, 139 S. Ct. at 2566; U.S. House of Representatives, 2 525 U.S. at 331-33; State of California v. Ross, 362 F. Supp. 3d 749, 755-56 (N.D. Cal. 2018).

3 B. The Apportionment Exclusion Order Is Unconstitutional

4 The Constitution requires apportioning Representatives “among the several States
 5 according to their respective numbers” by “counting the whole number of persons in each State.”
 6 U.S. Const. amend. XIV, § 2; see also id. art. I, § 2, cl. 3 (requiring apportionment by “adding”
 7 “the whole Number of free Persons” through an “actual Enumeration”). As confirmed by the 8 Constitution’s structure, drafting history, and over two centuries of consistent historical practice
 9 by all three branches of government, the phrase “persons in each State” means that the 10 apportionment must be based on all people residing in each State—not just voters, citizens, or 11 legal residents, but the total population. See infra at 14-27. Against this weight of authority, the 12 Order’s central justification is that “persons in each State” means “inhabitants,” and the President
 13 has discretion to decide who counts as an inhabitant. But “inhabitant” means a person who 14 resides in a place, and the President has no discretion to narrow the ordinary and accepted
 15 definition of the term to suit his political objectives. Undocumented persons who reside in a 16 State are inhabitants of that State as a matter of text, history, and practice, and the Order to 17 exclude them from the apportionment count is blatantly unconstitutional. See infra at 27-29.

18 1. The Constitution’s Text and Structure Require Apportionment Based on 19 Total Population

20 The Constitution “was written to be understood by the voters; its words and phrases were 21 used in their normal and ordinary as distinguished from technical meaning.” Dist. of Columbia
 22 v. Heller, 554 U.S. 570, 576 (2008) (quotations and citation omitted). And when that ordinary 23 meaning is clear, “there is no room for construction and no excuse for interpolation or addition.”
 24 United States v. Sprague, 282 U.S. 716, 731 (1931). Here, the ordinary meaning of the phrase
 25 “persons in each State” is indisputable—it requires counting all people residing in each State.
 26 The meaning of “person” has not changed since the founding. The 1766 edition of Samuel 27 Johnson’s dictionary defined “person” as an “[i]ndividual or particular man or woman”; “[m]an 28 or woman considered as opposed to things; “[h]uman being”; “[a] general loose term for a

1 human being.”¹⁹ “Person” meant the same thing when the Fourteenth Amendment was ratified
 2 in 1868.²⁰ And it means the same thing today.²¹

3 Consistent with the word’s ordinary meaning, foreign-born non-citizens unquestionably 4 were considered “persons” under law at the time of the Founding. Indeed, the first volume of 5 William Blackstone’s influential Commentaries on the Laws of England, published in 1765—
 6 entitled “The Rights of Persons”—included a chapter on the rights of “People, Whether Aliens,
 7 Denizens, or Natives.”²² Chancellor Kent’s Commentaries on American Law, published in 1826,
 8 likewise had a chapter on the rights of “Aliens and Natives”—which was included in his volume
 9 on “The Law Concerning The Rights of Persons.”²³

10 In light of the clarity of this language, the Supreme Court has repeatedly held that all 11 human beings are persons within the meaning of the Constitution. As early as Yick Wo v.
 12 Hopkins, 118 U.S. 356 (1886), the Court held that “person,” as used in the Due Process Clause of 13 the Fifth Amendment, is not limited to citizens but means what it says. “These provisions are 14 universal in their application, to all persons within the territorial jurisdiction, without regard to 15 any differences of race, of color, or of nationality; and the equal protection of the laws is a 16 pledge of the protection of equal laws.” Id. at 369.

17 Even more to the point, the Court has explicitly held that, as used in Section 1 of the 18 Fourteenth Amendment, “person” encompasses undocumented immigrants. In Plyler v. Doe, the 19 Court addressed whether a Texas statute that withheld from local schools any funds for the 20 education of undocumented immigrants violated the Equal Protection Clause of the Fourteenth 21 Amendment. 457 U.S. 202 (1982). Although the Justices disagreed sharply on other aspects of 22

23 ¹⁹ Ex. 32, Person, Samuel Johnson, A Dictionary of the English Language (3d ed. 1766).

24 ²⁰ Ex. 12, Person, Noah Webster, An American Dictionary of the English Language (1868).

25 ²¹ Ex. 35, Person, Merriam-Webster Online Dictionary (“Human, Individual”), <https://www.merriam-webster.com/dictionary/person> (last accessed Aug. 26, 2020).

26 ²² Ex. 13, 1 W. Blackstone, Commentaries on the Laws of England ch. 10 (1765) (emphasis 27 added).

28 ²³ Ex. 14, 2 J. Kent, Commentaries on American Law 33-63 (1826) (emphasis added); see also
id. at 43 (“An alien is a person born out of the jurisdiction of the United States.” (emphasis added)).

1 the case, they unanimously agreed that an undocumented person is a “person” under the 2 Fourteenth Amendment: “Whatever his status under the immigration laws, an alien is surely a
 3 ‘person’ in any ordinary sense of that term.” Id. at 210; id. at 243 (no “quarrel” with that 4 holding) (Burger, C.J., dissenting). And the Court specifically rejected the argument that the 5 term “person” as it appears in the Due Process clause of Section 1 of the Fourteenth Amendment
 6 means something different than what “person” means in the Equal Protection clause of the same
 7 section in the same amendment. Id. at 210-14.²⁴

8 There is no sound reason to conclude that the same drafters of the same constitutional 9 amendment used the same word in Section 2 to bear a fundamentally different meaning. See
 10 Ariz. State Legislature v. Ariz. Indep. Redistricting Comm’n, 135 S. Ct. 2652, 2680 (2015)
 11 (Roberts, C.J., dissenting) (“When seeking to discern the meaning of a word in the Constitution, 12 there is no better dictionary than the rest of the Constitution itself.”). Just as undocumented
 13 immigrants are persons under Section 1 of the Fourteenth Amendment, so too are they persons 14 under Section 2.

15 Furthermore, the structure of the Apportionment Clause and other provisions in the 16 Constitution likewise show that the phrase “persons in each State” was meant to include all 17 human beings residing in each State. When the drafters sought to exclude certain classes of 18 persons, they did so expressly. The Founders excluded “Indians not taxed,” and discounted
 19 persons who were not “free”—slaves—by forty percent for enumeration purposes. U.S. Const.
 20 art. I, § 2, cl. 3. The drafters of the Fourteenth Amendment retained the exclusion of “Indians 21 not taxed,” while abrogating the three-fifths clause. See id. amend. XIV, § 2. And when the 22 Founders sought to describe a subset of “persons,” they also did that expressly. See id. art. I, § 2, 23 cl. 2 (“No Person shall be a Representative who shall not have . . . been seven Years a Citizen of 24 the United States”); id. § 3, cl. 3 (“No Person shall be a Senator who shall not have . . . been nine
 25

26
 27 ²⁴ The Supreme Court has similarly concluded in the context of the Due Process Clause that 28 undocumented immigrants fall within the meaning of “persons.” See Zadvydas v. Davis, 533
 U.S. 678, 693 (2001) (“[T]he Due Process Clause applies to all ‘persons’ within the United States, including aliens, whether their presence here is lawful, unlawful, temporary, or permanent.”).

1 Years a Citizen of the United States, and who shall not, when elected, be an Inhabitant of that
 2 State for which he shall be chosen”); id. art. II, § 1, cl. 5 (“No Person except a natural born
 3 Citizen, or a Citizen of the United States, at the time of the Adoption of this Constitution, shall 4 be eligible to the Office of President”).

5 These examples—and others—confirm the Constitution’s purposeful distinction between 6 persons and citizens. See, e.g., id. amend. XIV, § 1 (“All persons born or naturalized in the 7 United States, and subject to the jurisdiction thereof, are citizens of the United States and of the 8 State wherein they reside.”); id. § 3 (“when the right to vote at any election . . . is denied to any 9 of the male inhabitants of such State, being . . . citizens of the United States, . . . the basis of 10 representation therein shall be reduced in the proportion which the number of such male citizens
 11 shall bear to the whole number of male citizens”). This consistent “difference of phraseology”
 12 reveals a “difference of constitutional intention.” Martin v. Hunter’s Lessee, 14 U.S. 304, 334
 13 (1816) (Story, J.); see also Fong Yue Ting v. United States, 149 U.S. 698, 739 (1893) (Gray, J.)
 14 (“It is worthy of notice that in [the Bill of Rights] the word ‘citizen’ is not found. In some of 15 them the descriptive word is ‘people,’ but in the fifth it is broader, and the word is ‘person.’”). It
 16 drives home the intended meaning of the language chosen: All persons residing in each State are 17 counted for purposes of apportionment.

18 2. The Constitution’s Drafting History Confirms that Apportionment Must Be 19 Based on Total Population

20 The Constitution’s drafting history confirms that the Apportionment Clause requires an 21 apportionment based on total population. After the Constitutional Convention’s substantive 22 deliberations were finished, the draft Apportionment Clause provided that Congress would 23 “regulate the number of representatives by the number of inhabitants, according to the rule
 24 hereinafter made for direct taxation,” and the Direct Taxation Clause provided that “[t]he 25 proportions of direct taxation shall be regulated by the whole number of free citizens and 26 inhabitants of every age, sex, and condition, including those bound to servitude for a term of 27 years, and three fifths of all other persons not comprehended in the foregoing description,
 28

1 (except Indians not paying taxes).”²⁵ That language was referred to the Committee of Style,
 2 which had the task of making stylistic revisions but no substantive changes.²⁶ The Committee of 3 Style, in turn, reported back the final language of Article I, Section 2: “Representatives and 4 direct taxes shall be apportioned among the several states which may be included within this
 5 Union, according to their respective numbers, which shall be determined by adding to the whole
 6 number of free persons, including those bound to servitude for a term of years, and excluding
 7 Indians not taxed, three fifths of all other persons.”²⁷

8 This drafting history shows that the Framers understood the final language—“persons”—
 9 to extend beyond “citizens” and to include “inhabitants of every age, sex, and condition.” Had 10 the Framers intended to limit apportionment based on citizenship or immigration status, they 11 would have omitted the additional language specifying “inhabitants of every . . . condition.” The 12 drafting history is also consistent with the debates at the Convention, which “make at least one 13 fact abundantly clear: When the delegates agreed that the House should represent ‘people’ they 14 intended that in allocating Congressmen the number assigned to each State should be determined 15 solely by the number of the State’s inhabitants.” Wesberry v. Sanders, 376 U.S. 1, 13 (1964).
 16 As James Madison explained, “[i]t is a fundamental principle of the proposed Constitution, that 17 as the aggregate number of representatives allotted to the several States is to be . . . founded on 18 the aggregate number of inhabitants.”²⁸ “There can be no truer principle than this,” Alexander 19 Hamilton declared at the Convention, “that every individual of the community at large has an 20 equal right to the protection of government.”²⁹

21 The debates at the Convention confirm that the Founders recognized the distinction
 22 between this “rule of Representation” and “suffrage.”³⁰ They were acutely aware that the 23

24 ²⁵ Ex. 15, 2 Records of the Federal Convention of 1787 at 566, 571 (M. Farrand ed. 1911)
 25 (emphasis added).

26 ²⁶ See id. at 547, 553.

27 ²⁷ Id. at 590; see also id. at 607-08 (approval of Article I, § 2 on Sept. 13).

28 ²⁸ Ex. 16, The Federalist No. 54.

29 ²⁹ Ex. 17, 1 Records of the Federal Convention of 1787 at 473 (M. Farrand ed. 1911).

30 ³⁰ Id. at 580-81.

1 apportionment base would include “categories of persons who were ineligible to vote—women,
2 children, bound servants, convicts, the insane, and, at a later time, aliens.” Garza v. Cty. of Los
3 Angeles, 918 F.2d 763, 774 (9th Cir. 1990). James Madison thus readily acknowledged that, by 4 design, “[i]n every State, a certain proportion of inhabitants are deprived of [the] right [to vote
5 but] . . . will be included in the census by which the federal Constitution apportions the 6 representatives.”³¹

7 The drafting history of the Fourteenth Amendment likewise confirms that the phrase
8 “persons in each State” includes undocumented immigrants residing in the States. The 39th
9 Congress, which enacted the Fourteenth Amendment, began its first session on December 4, 10 1865, shortly after the Civil War (and two days before ratification of the Thirteenth 11 Amendment).³² Because recently freed slaves had become “free Persons” under the 12 Enumeration Clause, they had greater weight in apportionment, and Southern representation in 13 Congress was expected to increase significantly.³³

14 Apportionment was thus a principal focus of the debate surrounding the Fourteenth
15 Amendment. Early on, language was proposed “that would have allocated House seats to States 16 ‘according to their respective legal voters’” instead of according to population. Evenwel v.
17 Abbott, 136 S. Ct. 1120, 1128 (2016). Both this proposal and the ensuing debate were 18 predicated on the fact that, under the then-existing Apportionment Clause, people without the 19 right to vote, including unnaturalized immigrants, were included in the apportionment base. See, 20 e.g., Ex. 18, Cong. Globe, 39th Cong., 1st Sess. at 141 (statement of Rep. Blaine) (“As an 21 abstract proposition no one will deny that population is the true basis of representation; for 22 women, children, and other non-voting classes may have as vital an interest in the legislation of 23 the country as those who actually deposit the ballot”); id. at 353 (1866) (statement of Rep.
24 Rogers) (“Every man in this House knows perfectly well in the several States . . . unnaturalized
25

26 ³¹ Ex. 16, The Federalist No. 54 (James Madison).

27 ³² See Ex. 18, Cong. Globe, 39th Cong., 1st Sess. 1, 3 (Dec. 4, 1865).

28 ³³ See Ex. 19, William W. Van Alstyne, The Fourteenth Amendment, the “Right” to Vote, and the Understanding of the Thirty-Ninth Congress, 1965 Sup. Ct. Rev. 33, 46.

1 citizens cannot vote . . . yet for these persons the States are entitled to representation.”); id. at 2 359 (1866) (statement of Rep. Conkling) (“‘Persons,’ and not ‘citizens,’ have always constituted
 3 the basis” and “it would narrow the basis of taxation and cause considerable inequalities in this 4 respect, because the number of aliens in some States is very large, and growing larger now, when
 5 emigrants reach our shores at the rate of more than a State a year”); id. at 432 (1866) (statement
 6 of Rep. Bingham) (“Under the Constitution as it now is and as it always has been, the entire 7 immigrant population of this country is included in the basis of representation.”); id. at 961
 8 (1866) (statement of Sen. Buckalew) (“By the existing Constitution representation is based upon 9 the whole number of inhabitants in the States, exclusive of Indians not taxed,” such that 10 “foreigners are counted.”); id. at 2944 (1866) (statement of Sen. Williams) (“Representation is 11 now based upon population,” including “foreigners not naturalized.”); id. at 2944 (1866)
 12 (statement of Sen. Edmunds) (“The fathers who founded this Government acted upon the idea
 13 not only that the representation, as a principle, in general was to be based upon population, 14 independent of the franchise, independent of citizenship.”).

15 Ultimately, the Fourteenth Amendment retained total population, not the number of 16 citizens, as the apportionment base. As Senator Howard explained in introducing the final 17 version of the proposed Fourteenth Amendment on the Senate floor: “Its basis of representation
 18 is numbers . . .; that is, the whole population except untaxed Indians and persons excluded by the 19 State laws for rebellion or other crime. . . . Numbers, not voters; numbers, not property; this is 20 the theory of the Constitution.” Id. at 2766-67 (emphasis added).

21 As this extensive drafting history illustrates, neither the Founders nor those who drafted
 22 the Fourteenth Amendment intended to distinguish among persons based on voting or citizenship
 23 status. They affirmatively disclaimed any such distinction and concluded that apportionment is 24 based on all persons residing in each State.

25 3. Consistent Historical Practice Confirms that the Constitution Requires 26 Apportionment Based on Total Population

27 In addition to bucking the plain text, structure, and drafting history of the Constitution, 28 the Apportionment Exclusion Order’s exclusion of undocumented immigrants from the

1 appportionment base departs radically from over two centuries of consistent practice and steadfast
2 interpretations by all three branches of government.

3 Consistent historical practice informs constitutional meaning. See, e.g., Evenwel, 136 S.
4 Ct. at 1132 (“What constitutional history and our prior decisions strongly suggest, settled
5 practice confirms.”). Consistent historical practice has been a particularly important interpretive
6 tool in cases involving the census and apportionment. See, e.g., Dep’t of Commerce, 139 S. Ct.
7 at 2567 (“[O]ur interpretation of the Constitution is guided by a Government practice that ‘has
8 been open, widespread, and unchallenged since the early days of the Republic.’” (citation
9 omitted)); Wisconsin v. City of New York, 517 U.S. 1, 21 (1996) (acknowledging “the importance
10 of historical practice in” understanding the Enumeration Clause). And the reverse is equally 11 true: As the Supreme Court recently noted, “lack of historical precedent” can be a “most telling 12 indication of [a] severe constitutional problem.” Seila Law LLC v. Consumer Fin. Prot. Bureau, 13 140 S. Ct. 2183, 2201 (2020) (internal quotation marks omitted). Here, the historical practice of 14 counting every person in the apportionment base could not be more longstanding and uniform, 15 and the Apportionment Exclusion Order’s departure from that settled precedent could not be 16 more stark.

17 From the very first census in 1790 until now, the apportionment base has never excluded
18 undocumented immigrants. Aside from the two shameful exceptions provided in the text—
19 discounting slaves and excluding Indians not taxed—the apportionment base has always 20 included all persons residing in each State. Under the first census statute, marshals and their 21 assistants conducted the census and were required to count “the number of the inhabitants within 22 their respective districts.”³⁴ As the Census Bureau Director told Congress in 1985, “[t]raditional
23 understanding of the Constitution and the legal direction provided by the Congress has meant
24 that for every census since the first one in 1790, [the Bureau] ha[s] tried to count residents of the 25
26
27

28 ³⁴ Ex. 20, Act of Mar. 1, 1790, § 1, 1 Stat.

1 country, regardless of their status.”³⁵ The data bears this out. For example, in the 1860
 2 Census—the only census that post-dates the Fugitive Slave Act of 1850 (which required free
 3 States to return escaped slaves within their borders, who were deemed to have no lawful
 4 presence there, see 9 Stat. 462, 462-65 (1850)) but pre-dates ratification of the Thirteenth
 5 Amendment—fugitive slaves in Northern States were explicitly counted as part of their “free
 6 colored population,” despite their unlawful residence in those States.³⁶ In other words, the 1860
 7 census and resulting apportionment specifically counted in a State’s population persons who 8 lacked “legal status” in that State under then-existing law.

9 This unbroken practice of counting all persons residing in each State reflects both
 10 Congress and the Executive’s consistent understanding of what the Constitution requires. Bills
 11 proposed to exclude “aliens” from apportionment have repeatedly been rejected for precisely this 12 reason. In 1929, for example, the Senate Legislative Counsel analyzed whether such a bill would 13 be constitutional.³⁷ After exhaustive research, the Senate Legislative Counsel observed that 14 “[t]he practical construction of the constitutional provision by Congress in its apportionment 15 legislation has been uniformly in favor of inclusion of aliens” and concluded that doing
 16 otherwise was constitutionally impermissible:

17 The “natural and obvious” meaning of the word “persons,” the 18 internal evidence relating to its use in the apportionment provisions
 19 of the fourteenth amendment and original constitutional provision

20 ³⁵ Ex. 21, Enumeration of Undocumented Aliens in the Decennial Census: Hearing Before the 21 Subcomm. on Energy, Nuclear Proliferation, & Gov’t Processes of the S. Comm. on 22 Governmental Affairs, 99th Cong. 19 (1985) (statement of Census Director John Keane); see
 23 also id. at 91-92, Fact Sheet: Illegal Aliens and the Decennial Census, U.S. Dep’t of Commerce, 24 Bureau of the Census (July 18, 1985), reprinted at 99th Cong. 91-92 (1985) (“The Census
 25 Bureau conducts the decennial census as mandated by the Constitution and directed by the 26 Congress: The decennial census is based on total population. The Census Bureau does not 27 exclude persons because of their legal status.”).

28 ³⁶ Ex. 22, U.S. Census Bureau, 1860 Census: Population of the United States at vi-vii, xi, xv-
 xvi, (Gov’t Printing Office 1864), https://www2.census.gov/library/publications/decennial/1860//population/1860a-02.pdf (discussing changes in the fugitive slave population from 1850 to 1860).

³⁷ See Ex. 23, C.E. Turney, Law Assistant, Senate Legislative Counsel, Power of Congress to Exclude Aliens from Enumeration for Purposes of Apportionment of Representatives (Apr. 30, 1929), reprinted at 71 Cong. Rec. 1821-22 (1929) [https://www2.census.gov/library/publications/
 /decennial/1860/population/1860a-02.pdf](https://www2.census.gov/library/publications/decennial/1860/population/1860a-02.pdf).

1 superseded by that amendment, the use of the word in other
 2 constitutional provisions and the decisions of the courts thereon, the 3 history of the fourteenth amendment, the evidence of the records of 4 the Constitutional Convention, and the uniform past congressional 5 construction of the term by Congress in its apportionment legislation
 6 all lead to the conclusion that the term “persons” as used in section
 2 of the fourteenth amendment includes aliens as well as citizens. It is therefore the opinion of this office that there is no constitutional authority for the enactment of legislation excluding aliens from enumeration for the purposes of apportionment of Representatives
 among the States.³⁸

7 Several constitutional amendments were proposed to modify the wording; all failed.³⁹

8 Congress considered and rejected a similar proposal in 1940.⁴⁰ Representative Celler of 9 New York put it simply: “If you want aliens out, you must amend the Constitution.”⁴¹ He went 10 on:

11 For 150 years we have included aliens in the count. We cannot, by 12 mere resolution of this body or the adjoining body, change that 13 constitutional requirement. If you strike out aliens you have parted 14 with a principle of government upon which the fathers agreed some 15 150 years ago, which they thought a reasonable adjustment of the whole problem. When we use the word “persons” we include all peoples. . . . We include women and minors; we include all persons, and it would be rather anomalous now for the first time to say that we shall not include aliens as now being persons.⁴²

16 This debate also appears to be the first time that the subject of undocumented immigrants was 17 raised explicitly. Representative Celler was asked whether “aliens who are in this country in 18 violation of law have the right to be counted and represented in the Congress of the United 19 States.”⁴³ His response was blunt: “The Constitution says that all persons shall be counted. I
 20 cannot quarrel with the founding fathers. They said that all should be counted.”⁴⁴

21 In 1989, Congress considered—and rejected—an amendment to 13 U.S.C. § 141 that 22

23 ³⁸ Id. at 1822.

24 ³⁹ See Ex. 24, H.J. Res. 20, 71st Cong. (1929); S.J. Res. 4, 62, 71st Cong. (1929).

25 ⁴⁰ See Ex. 25, 86 Cong. Rec. 4371-75.

26 ⁴¹ Id. at 4372.

27 ⁴² Id.

28 ⁴³ Id.

⁴⁴ Id.

1 would have required the Secretary of Commerce to adjust the census numbers so that “aliens in
 2 the United States in violation of the immigration laws shall not be counted” under 13 U.S.C.
 3 § 141(b) for apportionment.⁴⁵ During debate, Senator Bumpers from Arkansas explained that he
 4 did “not want to go home and explain [his] vote on this [amendment] any more than anyone else
 5 does,” but that “[f]or 200 years we have counted illegal aliens in our census.”⁴⁶ He went on: “I
 6 wish the Founding Fathers had said you will only enumerate ‘citizens,’ but they did not. They 7 said ‘persons,’ and so that is what it has been for 200 years. We have absolutely no right or 8 authority to change that peremptorily on a majority vote here.”⁴⁷

9 Most recently, in 2009, a proposed constitutional amendment to exclude undocumented 10 immigrants from apportionment was referred to committee.⁴⁸ But it never got out of 11 committee.⁴⁹

12 The Executive Branch, under Presidents of both parties, also has consistently recognized
 13 that the Constitution requires apportionment based on total population irrespective of citizenship
 14 or immigration status. In 1980, under President Jimmy Carter, the Department of Justice (DOJ)
 15 argued—in an apportionment suit where private plaintiffs sought to exclude undocumented
 16 immigrants from the census and apportionment base—that the Fourteenth Amendment 17 “require[s] that all the inhabitants of the states, including illegal aliens, be counted for the 18 apportionment of the United States House of Representatives.” Defs.’ Reply Br. at 6, Fed’n for 19 Am. Immigration Reform v. Klutznick, No. 79-3269, 1980 WL 683642 (D.D.C. Jan. 3, 1980)
 20 (emphasis added). “[F]or 200 years,” DOJ explained, “the decennial census has counted all 21 residents of the states irrespective of their citizenship or immigration status.” Defs.’ Post-Arg.
 22 Mem. at 1, Klutznick, No. 79-3269 (D.D.C. Feb. 15, 1980). And excluding undocumented
 23

24 ⁴⁵ See Ex. 26, 135 Cong. Rec. 14539-40 (1989).

25 ⁴⁶ Id. at 14551.

26 ⁴⁷ Id.

27 ⁴⁸ See Ex. 27, H.J. Res. 11, 111th Cong. (2009).

28 ⁴⁹ Cf. Ex. 28, Cong. Rsch. Serv., R41048, Constitutionality of Excluding Aliens from the Census for Apportionment and Redistricting Purposes 2 (2012) (detailing attempted constitutional amendments).

1 immigrants from the apportionment would be “a radical revision of the constitutionally mandated
2 system for allocation of Representatives to the States of the Union and an equally radical
3 revision of the historic mission of the decennial census,” which could only be achieved through 4 “the proper means of a constitutional amendment.” Id.

5 In 1988, under President Ronald Reagan, the Director of the Office of Management and 6 Budget sought the views of DOJ on yet another proposal to exclude “illegal aliens” from the 7 apportionment base. DOJ concluded that the proposed legislation was “unconstitutional,” and 8 noted that “[i]f it were passed, [DOJ] would recommend that the President veto it.”⁵⁰ DOJ
9 explained that “the Congress that passed the Fourteenth Amendment in 1866 not only recognized 10 that aliens would be counted in the census but insisted upon their inclusion” in the census and 11 apportionment.⁵¹ DOJ observed that even though the Reconstruction Congress “did not discuss 12 the issue of illegal aliens when it debated the Fourteenth Amendment,” it was already “possible
13 to be an illegal alien in 1866.”⁵²

14 In 1989, under President George H.W. Bush, DOJ came to the same conclusion. Once 15 again, a Senator had “requested the views of the Department of Justice concerning the 16 constitutionality of proposed legislation excluding illegal or deportable aliens from the decennial
17 census count.”⁵³ DOJ responded that “section two of the Fourteenth Amendment which provides 18 for ‘counting the whole number of persons in each state’ and the original Apportionment and 19 Census Clauses of Article I section two of the Constitution require that inhabitants of States who 20

21
22 ⁵⁰ Ex. 29, Letter from Thomas M. Boyd, Acting Assistant Attorney General at 5 (June 29, 1988), 23 reprinted at 1990 Census Procedures and Demographic Impact on the State of Michigan:
24 Hearing Before the Committee on Post Office and Civil Service, House of Representatives, 100th 25 Cong. 240-44 (1988).

26 ⁵¹ Id. at 3 (emphasis added).

27 ⁵² Id. at 4 (citing Act of July 6, 1798, ch. 66, 1 Stat. 577). Specifically, “[t]he United States has 28 had a statute since 1798 governing arrest and exclusion of aliens from hostile countries,” and the authority under that statute “had been exercised prior to 1866.” Id. So the concept of “illegal aliens” was not unknown when the Fourteenth Amendment was ratified.

⁵³ See Ex. 30, Letter from Carol T. Crawford, Assistant Attorney General (Sept. 22, 1989), 135
Cong. Rec. S12234 (1989).

1 are illegal aliens be included in the census count.”⁵⁴

2 In 2015, under President Barack Obama, DOJ again observed that Article I, § 2 and the 3 Fourteenth Amendment “were purposely drafted to refer to ‘persons,’ rather than to voters, and 4 to include people who could not vote”—specifically including “aliens.” Br. for the United States
5 as Amicus Curiae at 18, Evenwel, No. 14-940, 2015 WL 5675829, at *18 (citation omitted).
6 DOJ explained that this was because “the federal government act[s] in the name of (and thereby
7 represent[s]) all people, whether they [are] voters or not, and whether they [are] citizens or not.”
8 Id. at 19.

9 Although the Supreme Court has never needed to squarely address this issue—in large 10 part because no Administration has ever before proposed to exclude disfavored persons from the 11 enumeration—the Court has repeatedly indicated its understanding that all persons residing in 12 the United States must be counted. Just last year, the Supreme Court detailed how “[t]he 13 population count derived from the census”—not the citizenship count or voter count—“is used 14 . . . to apportion representatives.” Dep’t of Commerce, 139 S. Ct. at 2561 (emphasis added); see 15 also, e.g., Evenwel, 136 S. Ct. at 1129 (“[I]t remains beyond doubt that the principle of 16 representational equality figured prominently in the decision to count people, whether or not they 17 qualify as voters.” (emphasis added)); Wisconsin, 517 U.S. at 5 (“The Constitution requires an 18 ‘actual Enumeration’ of the population every 10 years and . . . provides that the results of the 19 census shall be used to apportion the Members of the House of Representatives among the 20 States.”); Wesberry, 376 U.S. at 13 (“[I]n allocating Congressmen[,] the number assigned to each
21 State should be determined solely by the number of the State’s inhabitants.”). And the only court
22 that has ruled directly on the issue held that undocumented immigrants must be counted. Fed’n
23 for Am. Immigration Reform v. Klutznick, 486 F. Supp. 564, 576 (D.D.C. 1980) (“The language
24 of the Constitution is not ambiguous. It requires the counting of the ‘whole number of persons’
25 for apportionment purposes, and while illegal aliens were not a component of the population at 26 the time the Constitution was adopted, they are clearly ‘persons.’”).

27 _____
28 ⁵⁴ Id. At that time, current Attorney General William Barr was the head of DOJ’s Office of Legal Counsel and would have been expected to review and approve the DOJ opinion.

1 Until now, no decision issued by any court, no law passed by any Congress, and no
 2 opinion issued or case argued by any Administration—of any political party—has deviated from 3 the ordinary meaning of the Apportionment Clause and Section 1 of the Fourteenth Amendment
 4 that congressional apportionment must be based on total population, irrespective of citizenship or 5 immigration status. The Constitution’s text, structure, and 230 years of history and uniform
 6 practice foreclose what Defendants seek to do here.

7 4. Defendants Have No Discretion to Exclude Undocumented Immigrant
 8 Residents from the Apportionment Base

9 Defendants lack discretion to exclude from the apportionment base undocumented 10 immigrants who reside in the States. The Apportionment Exclusion Order invokes Franklin v.
 11 Massachusetts, 505 U.S. 788 (1992), and asserts that the President has the “discretion to settle 12 the apportionment,” including the authority to determine who is an “inhabitant” for 13 apportionment purposes. 85 Fed. Reg. at 44679. It asserts, moreover, that this discretion is 14 sufficiently broad to allow the categorical exclusion of undocumented immigrants from the 15 apportionment base. Id. But whatever discretion the President may have at the margins under 16 Franklin,⁵⁵ it does not provide him the leeway to redefine fixed constitutional rules.

17 Defendants’ focus on the term “inhabitants,” rather than “persons” who reside a State is 18 unavailing. Unsurprisingly—because the terms are synonymous—Defendants’ position
 19 contravenes the ordinary and accepted meaning of “inhabitant” as well.⁵⁶ “Inhabitant” carries 20 the same meaning today as it did 230 years ago. An “inhabitant” is someone who “occupies a 21
 22

23 ⁵⁵ To be sure, Franklin held that the President has a degree of discretion over the “policy
 24 judgments that result in ‘the decennial census’” and that the President need not “adhere to the 25 policy decisions in the Secretary’s report [under 13 U.S.C. § 141(a)].” 505 U.S. at 799. But, at 26 the same time, the Supreme Court affirmed that “Section 2a . . . expressly require[s] the 27 President to use . . . the data from the ‘decennial census,’” id. at 797, and readily “admitted[]” the 28 “ministerial nature of the apportionment calculation” that the President must conduct under § 2a.
Id. (emphasis added).

⁵⁶ As the Court explained in Franklin, the use in the alternative of the term “inhabitant” dates back to the first enumeration Act’s use of the term and James Madison’s notes from the Convention. See 505 U.S. at 804-05.

1 particular place regularly, routinely, or for a period of time.”⁵⁷ The millions of undocumented
 2 immigrants who live in the United States plainly are “inhabitants” of the States in which they
 3 reside. No amount of “discretion” can change the meaning of words.

4 The Constitution’s text and unbroken history also foreclose Defendants’ claimed
 5 discretion. As the Supreme Court has observed, the first census Act gave the constitutional 6 phrase “in each State” the gloss of “[u]sual residence,” and that gloss “has been used by the 7 Census Bureau ever since to allocate persons to their home States.” Franklin v. Massachusetts, 8 505 U.S. 788, 804 (1992). To be sure, “usual residence . . . can mean more than mere physical 9 presence, and has been used broadly enough to include some element of allegiance or enduring
 10 tie to a place.” Id. But as the discussion above illustrates, the drafters of the Apportionment
 11 Clause and the Fourteenth Amendment (and every Congress since) uniformly rejected the notion
 12 that one’s legal status factored into being counted for apportionment.⁵⁸

13 The Order’s analogy to tourists and international visitors does not hold up either. The 14 Order points out that “aliens who are only temporarily in the United States” for business or 15 tourism, “and certain foreign diplomatic personnel,” are “persons” but nevertheless excluded
 16 from apportionment. 85 Fed. Reg. at 44679. Those examples illustrate only the Order’s faulty
 17 logic. Yes, temporary visitors are excluded—because the United States is not their “usual 18 residence” and they accordingly are not “inhabitants.” Foreign diplomats also are not 19 “inhabitants” of the United States in the usual meaning of the word. As the Supreme Court
 20 recognized in Franklin, under the historic understanding of “inhabitant,” the mere fact that a 21 government official “perform[s] . . . his duty abroad” does not mean the official becomes an 22

23
 24 ⁵⁷ Ex. 31, Inhabitant, Merriam-Webster Online Dictionary, [https://www.merriam-
 25 webster.com/dictionary/inhabitant](https://www.merriam-webster.com/dictionary/inhabitant) (last accessed Aug. 26, 2020); see also Ex. 32, Inhabitant, 26 Samuel Johnson, A Dictionary of the English Language (3d ed. 1766) (“Dweller; one that lives or resides in a place.”); Ex. 12, Inhabitant, Noah Webster, An American Dictionary of the English Language (1868) (“One who dwells or resides permanently in a place.”).

27 ⁵⁸ That is why the Census Bureau’s “Residence Rule” requires all residents of the United States, 28 including all “foreign citizens,” to be counted in the 2020 census, and recognizes that “[a]pportionment is based on the resident population, plus a count of overseas federal employees, for each of the 50 states.” Final 2020 Census Residence Criteria and Residence Situations, 83
 Fed. Reg. 5525, 5526 n.1, 5533 (Feb. 8, 2018).

1 “inhabitant” of the foreign country. 505 U.S. at 805; see also id. (“In the related context of
2 congressional residence qualifications, James Madison interpreted the constitutional term
3 ‘inhabitant’ to include ‘persons absent occasionally for a considerable time on public or private 4 business.’” (internal citations omitted)).

5 The Order’s analogies are not only illogical but also factually inapt. The Census
6 Bureau’s enumeration procedures already take into account whether a person’s residence is only 7 temporary: The census counts persons, including undocumented immigrants, only at their “usual
8 residence,” which is defined by the Bureau as the place where a person lives and sleeps “most of 9 the time.” And in any event, “[r]esearch and statistical reports have repeatedly found that 10 undocumented immigrants,” unlike temporary visitors, “see themselves as part of American 11 society and indeed have longstanding ties in the cities and towns in which they permanently
12 live.” Barreto Decl. ¶ 17; see also id. (survey found that 89% of Latino undocumented 13 immigrants had lived in the United States for over five years). Thus, the examples mentioned in 14 the Order do not actually support Defendants’ claimed discretion to exclude all undocumented 15 immigrants, or undermine the uniform practice that the apportionment is based on total
16 population of persons residing in each State—irrespective of legal status.

17 C. The Apportionment Exclusion Order Is *Ultra Vires

18 In addition to violating the Constitution, the Apportionment Exclusion Order contravenes
19 the Census Act and the Reapportionment Act. These statutory violations provide independent 20 bases to grant Plaintiffs their requested relief.

21 1. The Order Violates the Census Act

22 The Apportionment Exclusion Order violates the Census Act by instructing Secretary
23 Ross to provide the President with something other than “[t]he tabulation of total population”
24 required by statute. 13 U.S.C. § 141(b) (emphasis added). The Census Act specifies the 25 responsibilities—and the discretion—of the Secretary of Commerce when it comes to the census
26 and apportionment. See id. § 141. Section 141(a) addresses the census and confers limited 27 discretion on the Secretary: “The Secretary shall . . . take a decennial census of population as of 28 the first day of April . . . in such form and content as he may determine.” Section 141(b), in turn,

1 addresses the Secretary’s duties with respect to apportionment: “The tabulation of total
2 population by States under [§ 141(a)] as required for the apportionment of Representatives in 3 Congress among the several States shall be completed within 9 months after the census date and 4 reported by the Secretary to the President of the United States.”

5 Section 141(b) thus unambiguously requires the Secretary to report “for the 6 apportionment” a “tabulation of total population by State.” The Apportionment Exclusion Order, 7 however, directs the Secretary to report something else: to “provide information permitting the 8 President” to exclude undocumented immigrants from the apportionment base. 85 Fed. Reg.
9 44680. And that would be unlawful. Section 141(b)’s plain terms require the Secretary to 10 transmit a tabulation of the total population in each State—meaning all persons residing in each 11 State, regardless of citizenship, voter, or immigration status. Splitting this tabulation into 12 persons with “lawful immigration status” and those without, as the Order directs, would violate 13 § 141(b)’s plain terms.

14 The Apportionment Clause and the Reapportionment Act (2 U.S.C. § 2a(a)) confirm that 15 § 141(b)’s reference to “a tabulation of total population by State . . . as required for the 16 apportionment” means a tabulation based on the “whole number of Persons” without regard to 17 citizenship or immigration status. It is presumed that Congress legislates with knowledge of the 18 law and acts with awareness of “all previous statutes on the same subject.” Erlenbaugh v. United 19 States, 409 U.S. 239, 244 (1972). The Reapportionment Act was passed in 1929 and governs
20 what the President must do with the report he receives from the Secretary. The operative 21 language in § 141(b), setting forth the Secretary’s duties, was passed later, in 1954. See Pub. L.
22 No. 83-740, 68 Stat. 1012, 1020 (1954). Because both statutes implement the Apportionment
23 Clause, and because § 2a(a) directs the President to “transmit to the Congress a statement 24 showing the whole number of persons in each State,” § 141(b)’s direction for the Secretary to 25 report to the President a tabulation of total population by State . . . as required for the 26 apportionment” can mean only a tabulation of the “whole number of Persons.”

27 The Secretary, moreover, has no “discretion” under the statute to depart from this 28

1 command. The text confers no such discretion. See Dep't of Commerce, 139 S. Ct. at 2568
 2 (observing that, while certain provisions of the Census Act such as 13 U.S.C. §§ 5, 6, 141(a), and
 3 141(g), confer “broad authority” on the Secretary, other provisions—including § 141(b)—
 4 “constrain[] the Secretary’s authority”). And because the Apportionment Clause, which 5 underlies § 141(b), mandates that apportionment be based on the “whole number of persons in 6 each State,” Congress could not constitutionally have delegated to the Secretary any discretion to 7 prepare the apportionment report based on a different count.

8 2. The Order Violates the Reapportionment Act

9 The Apportionment Exclusion Order further violates 2 U.S.C. § 2a(a) by mandating an 10 apportionment based on something other than the “decennial census of the population” and 11 calculated by something other than application of the mathematical “method of equal 12 proportions.”

13 Section 2a(a) provides that “the President shall transmit to the Congress a statement
 14 showing the whole number of persons in each State, excluding Indians not taxed, as ascertained
 15 under the . . . census of the population, and the number of Representatives to which each State
 16 would be entitled under an apportionment of the then existing number of Representatives by the 17 method known as the method of equal proportions . . .” 2 U.S.C. § 2a(a) (emphasis added). So 18 the apportionment data must come from the “census of the population,” and the apportionment
 19 must be calculated using “the method of equal proportions.” The Apportionment Exclusion
 20 Order flouts both these requirements.

21 First, the Order reveals that Defendants’ apportionment will not be based solely on the 22 “decennial census.” The Order directs Secretary Ross to take “all appropriate action . . . to 23 provide information permitting the President” to exclude undocumented immigrants from the 24 apportionment base. 85 Fed. Reg. at 44680. But the “decennial census” does not provide 25 information about citizenship or legal status. See generally Dep't of Commerce, 139 S. Ct. 2551.
 26 So that information can only come from some other source. Indeed, the Order tells us it will 27 come from another source—the Order refers back to the July 11, 2019 executive order directing 28 federal departments and agencies “to share information with the Department of Commerce . . . to

1 allow the Secretary to obtain accurate data on the number of citizens, non-citizens, and illegal
2 aliens in the country.” 85 Fed. Reg. at 44680.

3 Even if Secretary Ross were able to provide President Trump with non-census
4 information on the number of undocumented immigrants in the United States, § 2(a) does not 5 permit the President to use that information in calculating the apportionment. Section 2a(a) (and 6 the Constitution) directs that the apportionment be “ascertained under the . . . census of the 7 population.” See U.S. House of Representatives, 525 U.S. at 321-22 (“Using . . . [the census]
8 information, the President must then ‘transmit to the Congress a statement showing the whole
9 number of persons in each State . . . and the number of Representatives to which each State
10 would be entitled.’”) (quoting 2 U.S.C. § 2a(a)); Franklin, 505 U.S. at 797 (“Section 2a . . .
11 expressly require[s] the President to use . . . the data from the ‘decennial census.’”). As DOJ
12 argued in Franklin, “[i]t would be unlawful [for the President] . . . just to say, these are the 13 [population] figures [from the census], they are right, but I am going to submit a different
14 statement” to Congress. Tr. of Oral Argument at 12, Franklin, 505 U.S. 788 (Deputy Solicitor 15 General John G. Roberts, Jr.).

16 Second, the Order violates 2 U.S.C. § 2a(a) by mandating an apportionment based on a 17 mathematical method other than “the method of equal proportions.” The “method of equal 18 proportions” is a mathematical method of apportionment that Congress adopted in 1941 because 19 it minimized discrepancies in the population sizes of congressional districts between any pair of 20 States. See U.S. Dep’t of Commerce v. Montana, 503 U.S. 442, 453-54 (1992); See U.S. Dep’t
21 of Commerce v. Montana, 503 U.S. 442, 453-54 (1992); see also Ex. 33, Professor Edward
22 Huntington, Memorandum on the Method of Equal Proportions, reprinted at 71 Cong. Rec. 4965
23 (Mar. 2, 1929).

24 And the method of equal proportions mandates the use of the States’ population to 25 calculate the apportionment. See, e.g., Montana, 503 U.S. at 452 n.26 (explaining that the 26 method involves dividing “the population of each State”); Ex. 34, U.S. Census Bureau,
27 Computing Apportionment (last revised Mar. 30, 2020), <https://www.census.gov/topics/public-> 28

1 sector/congressional-apportionment/about/computing.html (“This method assigns seats in the 2 House of Representatives according to a ‘priority’ value. The priority value is determined by
3 multiplying the population of a state by a ‘multiplier.’”); Br. for Gov’t Appellants, Montana, 503
4 U.S. 442, 1992 WL 672939, at *9-11 (“Under all of the methods, the formula for establishing 5 each State’s priorities has as its numerator the population of the State.”). Thus, the Order
6 violates § 2a(a) by proposing a calculation of the apportionment based on something other than 7 total population.

8 D. The Apportionment Exclusion Order Violates the Constitution’s Separation of 9 Powers

10 For similar reasons, the Apportionment Exclusion Order violates separation of powers
11 principles. To avoid one branch of government usurping the powers of another, the Framers 12 delineated distinct lines of responsibility between each branch to serve as “structural protections
13 against abuse of power.” Bowsher v. Synar, 478 U.S. 714, 730 (1986). The Constitution
14 provides that all legislative powers are vested exclusively in Congress, U.S. Const. art. I, § 1, 15 while the President’s role, in contrast, is to “take Care that the Laws be faithfully executed,” id.
16 art. II, § 3. Indeed, “the President’s power to see that the laws are faithfully executed refutes the 17 idea that he is to be a lawmaker.” Youngstown Sheet & Tube Co. v. Sawyer, 343 U.S. 579, 587
18 (1952). These constitutional provisions, among others, “were intended to erect enduring checks 19 on each Branch” of government. INS v. Chadha, 462 U.S. 919, 957 (1983). “To preserve those 20 checks, and maintain the separation of powers, the carefully defined limits on the power of each 21 Branch must not be eroded.” Id. at 957-58.

22 Consistent with these principles, the Enumeration Clause, as amended by the Fourteenth 23 Amendment, vests Congress with wide discretion to determine how the decennial census is 24 conducted. Dep’t of Commerce v. New York, 139 S. Ct. at 2566. Congress has fulfilled this duty
25 by enacting the Census Act and the Reapportionment Act. As discussed above, the former 26 requires the Secretary of Commerce to report to the President “[t]he tabulation of total
27 population by States” for the purpose of congressional apportionment, 13 U.S.C. § 141(b)
28 (emphasis added), while the latter mandates that the President “shall transmit to the Congress a

1 statement showing the whole number of persons in each State . . . and the number of 2 Representatives to which each State would be entitled under an apportionment” calculated by 3 “the method of equal proportions.” 2 U.S.C. § 2a(a) (emphasis added). Neither of these 4 provisions, nor any other congressional enactment, authorizes the President to exclude 5 undocumented immigrants from the apportionment base.

6 Yet the Apportionment Exclusion Order flouts Congress’s faithful implementation of the 7 Constitution’s Enumeration and Apportionment Clauses by proclaiming that the President
 8 intends to exclude undocumented immigrants from the apportionment base. Such unilateral 9 action is “incompatible” with Congress’s clearly expressed will. See Youngstown, 343 U.S. at 10 637 (Jackson, J., concurring). When the President usurps Congress’s authority in this manner, 11 “his power is at its lowest ebb,” id., and he has failed his duty to “take Care that the Laws be 12 faithfully executed,” U.S. Const. art II, § 3. The Order thus violates separation of powers 13 principles, and on this additional basis, is unconstitutional.

14 E. Plaintiffs Are Entitled to Declaratory Relief and Permanent Injunctions

15 Finally, Plaintiffs are entitled to their requested remedies of declaratory relief and 16 permanent injunctions.

17 The Declaratory Judgment Act provides that, “[i]n a case of actual controversy within its 18 jurisdiction [except specified federal tax actions and bankruptcy proceedings] . . . any court of 19 the United States . . . may declare the rights and other legal relations of any interested party
 20 seeking such declaration, whether or not further relief is or could be sought.” 28 U.S.C.
 21 § 2201(a). “The phrase ‘case of actual controversy’ in the Act refers to the type of ‘Cases’ and 22 ‘Controversies’ that are justiciable under Article III.” MedImmune, Inc. v. Genentech, Inc., 549
 23 U.S. 118, 127 (2007). As explained, supra at 9-14, this dispute is justiciable under Article III
 24 because it is ripe and Plaintiffs have standing. Declaratory relief is therefore proper here.

25 For a permanent injunction, a plaintiff must satisfy a four-factor test:

- 26 (1) that [plaintiff] has suffered an irreparable injury; (2) that 27 remedies available at law, such as monetary damages, are 28 inadequate to compensate for that injury; (3) that, considering the balance of hardships between the plaintiff and defendant, a remedy in equity is warranted; and (4) that the public interest would not be

1 disserved by a permanent injunction.

2 Monsanto Co. v. Geertson Seed Farms, 561 U.S. 139, 156-57 (2010) (quoting eBay Inc. v.
 3 MercExchange, L.L.C., 547 U.S. 388, 391 (2006)).

4 All four factors are satisfied here. Plaintiffs will suffer irreparable injury from 5 California’s loss of representation in Congress in the Electoral College and the resulting dilution
 6 of individual Plaintiffs’ votes, and Plaintiffs are currently suffering injury as a result of the 7 Apportionment Exclusion Order’s chilling effect on the census response. See Goldie’s
 8 Bookstore v. Superior Ct., 739 F.2d 466, 472 (9th Cir. 1984) (“alleged constitutional 9 infringement will often alone constitute irreparable harm”). No legal remedies can adequately
 10 compensate for these injuries. See Nelson v. NASA, 530 F.3d 865, 882 (9th Cir. 2008), rev’d on 11 other grounds, 562 U.S. 134 (2011). Moreover, the balance of hardship and public interest are 12 best served by precluding Defendants from implementing a scheme that will deprive Plaintiffs of 13 their rights under the Constitution and the Census and Reapportionment Acts.

14 VI. CONCLUSION

15 For the foregoing reasons, the Court should enter summary judgment in the San Jose
 16 Plaintiffs’ favor on the First and Third Claims for Relief and the California Plaintiffs’ favor on 17 the First, Second, and Third Claims for Relief, and should award the relief requested.

18 Dated: August 27, 2020

Respectfully submitted,

LATHAM & WATKINS LLP

21 Kristen Clarke (admitted pro hac vice)
 22 Jon M. Greenbaum (Bar No. 166733)
 23 Ezra D. Rosenberg (admitted pro hac vice)
 24 Dorian L. Spence (admitted pro hac vice)
 Maryum Jordan (admitted pro hac vice)
 Ajay Saini (admitted pro hac vice)
LAWYERS’ COMMITTEE FOR CIVIL RIGHTS UNDER LAW
 1500 K Street NW, Suite 900
 Washington, DC 20005
 Telephone: 202.662.8600
 Facsimile: 202.783.0857

By: /s/ Richard P. Bress
 Richard P. Bress (admitted pro hac vice)
 555 Eleventh Street NW, Suite 1000
 Washington, D.C. 20004
 Telephone: 202.637.2200
 Facsimile: 202.637.2201

Steven M. Bauer (Bar No. 135067)
 Sadik Huseny (Bar No. 224659)
 Amit Makker (Bar No. 280747)
 Shannon D. Lankenau (Bar No. 294263)
 Cindy Guan (Bar No. 317036)
LATHAM & WATKINS LLP
 505 Montgomery Street, Suite 2000
 San Francisco, CA 94111
 Telephone: 415.391.0600

28 Attorneys for Plaintiffs City of San Jose,
California; King County, Washington; Black

1 Alliance for Just Immigration; Sam Liccardo; Facsimile: 415.395.8095
2 Zerihoun Yilma; and Lovette Kargbo-
3 Thompson

3 Mark Rosenbaum (Bar No. 59940)
4 PUBLIC COUNSEL
5 610 South Ardmore Avenue
6 Los Angeles, California 90005
7 Telephone: 213.385.2977
8 Facsimile: 213.385.9089

Attorneys for Plaintiffs City of San Jose,
California; King County, Washington;
Arlington County, Virginia; Black Alliance for Just Immigration; Sam Liccardo; Zerihoun
Yilma; and Lovette Kargbo-Thompson

6 Attorneys for Plaintiff City of San Jose,
7 California

8
9 10 11 12 13 14 15 16
17 18 19 20 21
22
23
24
25
26 27 28