STATEMENT OF JURISDICTION

This Court has exclusive jurisdiction over this matter pursuant to Section 17(d) of Article II of the Pennsylvania Constitution and 42 Pa.C.S. § 725(1). As set forth below, the final reapportionment plan for the Pennsylvania House of Representatives (“Final House Plan”) approved by the Respondent, the 2021 Legislative Reapportionment Commission (the “Commission” or “LRC”) on February 4, 2022 is contrary to law. Accordingly, Petitioner brings this appeal as an “aggrieved person” under Section 17(d) of Article II of the Pennsylvania Constitution.

Consistent with this Court’s Order of February 17, 2022, filed at No. 569 Judicial Administration Docket, this appeal is addressed to this Court’s appellate jurisdiction in the nature of a petition for review. See also Pa.R.A.P. 3321.

DETERMINATION IN QUESTION

Petitioner seeks review of the Final House Plan. A copy of the 2021 Final House Plan is attached hereto as Exhibit A.

SCOPE OF REVIEW AND STANDARD OF REVIEW

Scope of Review

“[T]he reapportionment process is outlined in our Constitution, and that charter specifically confers upon ‘any aggrieved person’ the right to appeal ‘directly to the Supreme Court.’” Holt v. 2011 Legislative Reapportionment Comm’n, 38 A.3d 711, 730 (Pa. 2012) (“Holt I”) (quoting PA. CONST. art. II, § 17(d)). If the appellant establishes that the final plan is contrary to law, the Supreme Court shall issue an order remanding the plan to the commission and directing the commission to reapportion the Commonwealth in a manner not inconsistent with such order.” PA. CONST. art. II, § 17(d). “On its face, the Constitution does not dictate any form of deference to the LRC, it does not establish any special presumption that the LRC’s work product is constitutional, and it also places no qualifiers on this Court’s scope of review.” Holt I, 38 A.3d at 730. “Absent some other constraint ... this Court would logically apply the scope of review generally applicable in similar matters.” Id. The Court’s scope of review in these appeals is plenary, “subject to the restriction, recognized in Albert [v. 2001 Legislative Reapportionment Comm’n], 790 A.2d 989 (Pa. 2002)], that a successful challenge must encompass the Final Plan as a whole, and the recognition in our prior cases that we will not consider claims that were not raised before the LRC.” Holt I, 38 A.3d at 733.

Standard of Review

“On appeal from a Final Plan, the plan may be found to be unconstitutional only if the appellant establishes that it is ‘contrary to law.’” Holt I, 38 A.3d at 733 (quoting PA. CONST. art. II, § 17(d)). “The primary ‘law’ at issue consists of the constitutional imperatives set forth in [Article II,] Section 16 [of the Pennsylvania Constitution]. Id.

Appeals regarding final legislative reapportionment plans are involve “purely legal questions” and are subject to de novo or plenary review. Id. “[I]n conducting de novo review, this Court corrects legal errors without deference to the judgment of the tribunal, agency, or other entity whose determination is challenged, as to the constitutionality of its actions. Id. (citing Pennsylvania Turnpike Comm’n v. Commonwealth, 899 A.2d 1085, 1094 (Pa. 2006). “[A] Final Plan approved by the LRC is not entitled to a presumption of constitutionality.” Id. at 734.

STATEMENT OF QUESTIONS INVOLVED

I. Whether the Final House Plan is contrary to law because the neutral criteria of PA. CONST. art. II, § 16 were subordinated to partisan interests?

Answer: Yes.

II. Whether the Final House Plan is contrary to law because it splits more political subdivisions than are absolutely necessary?

Answer: Yes.

III. Whether the Final House Plan is contrary to law because it discriminates on the basis of race or ethnicity?

Answer: Yes.

IV. Whether the Final House Plan is contrary to law because it expressly incorporates partisan considerations?

Answer: Yes.

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Pursuant to Section 17(a) of Article II of the Pennsylvania Constitution, the Commission was formed for the purposes of reapportioning the Commonwealth.

On August 12, 2021, the U.S. Census Bureau made the census data available and released the full redistricting toolkit on September 16, 2021. On December 16, 2021, the Commission approved a preliminary reapportionment plan for the Pennsylvania House of Representatives (the “Preliminary House Plan”) by a vote of 3-2 for the House map. The Commission held eight public hearings on the Preliminary House Plan between December 16, 2021 and February 4, 2022.

Petitioner (and countless others) timely filed exceptions to the Preliminary House Plan by January 18, 2022.

On February 4, 2022, the Commission approved the Final House Plan. A copy of the Final Plan, from which Petitioner appeals, is attached hereto as Exhibit A.

On March 4, 2022, Mark A. Nordenberg issued a report regarding the Commission’s Final Plan (the “Nordenberg Report”). A copy of the Nordenberg Report is attached as Exhibit B to Petitioner’s Petition for Review and is accessible at <https://www.redistricting.state.pa.us/commission/article/1097> (last visited March 7, 2022).

By order of this Court dated February 17, 2022, filed at Judicial Administration Docket No. 569, all petitions for review, as well as supporting briefs, challenging the Final Plan, are to be received by the Court on or before March 7, 2022. Petitioner timely filed his Petition for Review on March 7, 2022, and also timely files this supporting brief on the same date.

SUMMARY OF ARGUMENT

The Final House Plan amply demonstrates what can happen when a Commission disregards the dictates of this Court’s decision in League of Women Voters v. Commonwealth, 178 A.3d 737 (Pa. 2018), and instead chooses to prioritize partisan considerations over the neutral criteria required by Article II, Section 16 of the Pennsylvania Constitution. The Final House Plan pushes against the “outer limits” of constitutionally acceptable population deviation. The extent to which it does so is muddied by the Commission’s redefinition of “population,” as the Commission decided, for the first time in our Commonwealth’s history, to “reallocate” certain prisoners for reapportionment purposes. Just two weeks ago, this Court used the unadjusted Census data set in the adoption of a congressional redistricting plan (the same type of data set that has always been used in Pennsylvania). The Commission’s decision regarding the data set merely obfuscates the issue. Even when using the contrived data set selected by the Commission, the population deviation is significantly higher than under the existing plan.

But the population deviation by itself, though problematic, is far from the only fault with the Final House Plan. The Commission engaged in blatant “packing” of Republicans, cramming more of them in 80% of the most populous districts, while spreading Democratic voters enough to ensure a greater number of Democratic-leaning districts. Further, the incumbent pairings greatly disadvantages Republicans, to such an extent that the same cannot be considered coincidental.

The Final House Plan also is contrary to law because it splits far more political subdivisions than is absolutely necessary. And again, the mischief is in how the Commission decided to split political subdivisions. The Commission's stated preference for splitting larger municipalities (which also happen to have greater Democratic voters) is unsupported by any rational basis, and again evinces the Commission's prioritization of partisanship over the neutral criteria.

In addition, the Final House Plan's emphasis on minority opportunity districts, even absent any authorization to do so under the Voting Rights Act, runs afoul of the equal protection guarantees and the Racial Ethnic Equality Clause of the Pennsylvania Constitution. Although the Commission argues their approach might be justified by the Free and Equal Elections Clause, nothing in that clause, nor in any decision interpreting same, permits the Commission's approach.

Finally, the Commission engaged in partisan gerrymandering by another name, seeking to achieve a rough form of proportional representation, despite consistent guidance from this Court and the United States Supreme Court that there is no constitutional right to proportional representation. The drawing of lines to reach a predetermined outcome with respect to partisan splits repeats the very ills this Court attempted to protect against in LWV.

These substantial defects render the Final House Plan contrary to law. Accordingly, this Court should remand the matter to the Commission.

ARGUMENT

I. The Final House Plan is contrary to law because the neutral criteria of PA. CONST. art. II, § 16 were subordinated to partisan interests.

Just four years ago, this Court reemphasized the importance of ensuring that other considerations—particularly partisan interests—do not subordinate the “neutral criteria” set forth in the Pennsylvania Constitution when reapportioning districts. The Commission ignored this Court’s clear directive and produced a Final House Plan that plainly prioritized partisan considerations. Accordingly, the Final House Plan is contrary to law and this matter must be remanded to the Commission.

Under the Free and Equal Elections Clause of the Pennsylvania Constitution, “Elections shall be free and equal; and no power, civil or military, shall at any time interfere to prevent the free exercise of the right of suffrage.” PA. CONST. art. I, § 5. The Free and Equal Elections clause “mandates clearly and unambiguously, and in the broadest possible terms, that all elections conducted in this Commonwealth must be ‘free and equal.’” League of Women Voters v. Commonwealth, 178 A.3d 737, 804 (Pa. 2018) (“LWV”). By using this language, the Constitution’s framers intended that “all aspects of the electoral process, to the greatest degree possible, be kept open and unrestricted to the voters of our Commonwealth.” Id. This clause also protects, “to the greatest degree possible, a voter’s right to equal participation in the electoral process for the selection of his or her representatives in government,” such that “all voters have an equal opportunity to translate their votes into representation.” Id.

Section 16 of Article II of the Pennsylvania Constitution provides:

The Commonwealth shall be divided into 50 senatorial and 203 representative districts, which shall be composed of compact and contiguous territory as nearly equal in population as practicable. Each senatorial district shall elect one Senator, and each representative district one Representative. Unless absolutely necessary no county, city, incorporated town, borough, township or ward shall be divided in forming either a senatorial or representative district.

PA. CONST. art. II, § 16. “These neutral criteria provide a ‘floor’ of protection for an individual against the dilution of his or her vote in the creation of [voting] districts.” LWW, 178 A.3d at 817. When extraneous considerations subordinate these neutral criteria, a reapportionment plan violates the Free and Equal Elections Clause of the Pennsylvania Constitution. Id.

Although each of the neutral criteria “are of Pennsylvania constitutional magnitude, one of the factors, that districts be ‘as nearly equal in population as practicable,’ also exists as an independent command of federal constitutional law.” Id. at 738 (citing Specter v. Levin, 293 A.2d 15, 18 (Pa. 1972)). “Population is, of necessity, the starting point for consideration and the controlling criterion for judgment in legislative reapportionment controversies.... The Equal Protection Clause demands no less than substantially equal state legislative representation for all citizens.” Reynolds v. Sims, 377 U.S. 533, 567–68 (1964).

The United States Supreme Court recognizes that “some deviations from population equality may be necessary to permit the States to pursue other legitimate objective such as “[maintaining] the integrity of various political subdivisions” and “[providing] for compact districts of contiguous territory.” Brown v. Thompson, 462 U.S. 835, 842 (1983) (quoting Reynolds, 377 U.S. at 578). Even though exact equality of population might prove impossible, reapportionment schemes must be based “substantially” on the principle of population equality and must not be “diluted in any significant way” by a plan; substantial equality of population among the districts must be the “overriding objective” of a plan. Reynolds, 377 U.S. at 578–79.

Past Supreme Court decisions have established, as a general matter, that an apportionment plan with population disparities larger than 10% creates a prima facie case of discrimination and therefore must be justified by the State, the ultimate inquiry being whether the plan may reasonably be said to advance a rational state policy and, if so, whether the population disparities resulting from the plan exceed constitutional limits. Id. at 843.

During the last reapportionment of Pennsylvania’s legislative districts, this Court made clear that it did not require the Commission to expand population deviation to the outer limits that might be approved under federal law. Holt v. 2011 Legislative Reapportionment Comm’n, 38 A.3d 711 (Pa. 2012). Indeed, pushing up against the maximal limits for population deviation would run counter to the Pennsylvania Constitution’s dictate that legislative districts be “as nearly equal in population as practicable.”

But that is exactly what the Commission has done here. Given Pennsylvania's population of 13,002,700, the mean house district population is 64,053. The existing House map has a maximum deviation of 7.87%. The Final House Plan has a higher deviation of 8.65% or 9.88%, depending on the data set utilized. In preparing the Final House Plan, the Commission reallocated some state prisoners based on their residence prior to incarceration. See Nordenberg Report at 22–32. The Final House Plan has a population deviation of 8.65% using this adjusted data set. Using the non-adjusted Census dataset, the Final House Plan's population deviation is 9.88%, a mere rounding error away from the Supreme Court's 10% threshold for establishing a prima facie case of discrimination. Indeed, the Commission's utilization of a different data set seems focused on reducing the appearance of population deviation.

A. Packing of Republican Districts

The population deviation is material. In total, the Final House Plan creates 24 House Districts with a population over 66,000, while 27 House Districts have a population of less than 62,000.

More importantly, however, the nature of the population deviation belies a prioritization of partisan considerations over the use of the neutral redistricting criteria set forth in Article II, Section 16 of the Pennsylvania Constitution. Of the 25 most overpopulated districts in the Final House Plan, 20 districts have a Republican partisan lean, while only 5 districts have a Democratic partisan lean.

The Commission’s approach is undeniable: the Final House Plan spreads Democratic voters among a greater number of lesser-populated districts in a transparent effort to generate more Democratic-leaning seats. At the same time, it packs Republican voters into larger districts, thereby reducing these voters’ influence and reducing the likely number of Republican-leaning seats.

This Court spoke directly to the practice of packing in LWV. “[B]y placing voters preferring one party’s candidates in districts where their votes are cast for candidates destined to win (packing), the non-favored party’s votes are diluted.” LWV, 178 A.3d 814. “It is axiomatic that a diluted vote is not an equal vote, as all voters do not have an equal opportunity to translate their votes into representation.” Id. “This is the antithesis of a healthy representative democracy.” Id. The Free and Equal Elections Clause “protects Pennsylvanians’ right to vote from dilution resulting from extreme partisan gerrymandering.” Id.

B. Republican Incumbency Imperilment

Just four years ago, this Court observed that while factors such as the preservation of prior district lines, protection of incumbents, or the maintenance of the political balance which existed after the prior reapportionment “have historically played a role in the drawing of legislative districts,” those factors must be “wholly subordinate to the neutral criteria of compactness, contiguity, minimization of the division of political subdivisions, and the maintenance of population equality among congressional districts.” LWV, 178 A.3d at 817.

The Commission wholly ignored this edict, choosing instead to maximize the number of imperiled Republican seats via pairings. The Final House Plan pairs 8 Republican incumbents against each other, while pairing only 2 Democratic incumbents against each other. In addition, 4 more Republican incumbents are paired against Democratic incumbents. See Incumbent Report at Appendix H to Petition for Review filed by Representative Benninghoff, at 226a. In each of these districts, registered Democratic voters outnumber the registered Republican voters. The systematic pairing of incumbents based upon partisan considerations subordinated the neutral criteria required by the Pennsylvania Constitution.

C. The Commission’s Reallocation of Certain Prisoners Only Masks the Extent of the Population Deviation.

To hide the extent to which the Final House Plan fails to achieve population equality, the Commission simply changed its frame of reference. Instead of using the original Census data set that has served as the basis for every congressional redistricting plan and legislative reapportionment plan in this Commonwealth—including the congressional plan this Court adopted just two weeks ago—the Commission “reallocated” certain prisoners.

On February 23, 2022, this Court adopted a congressional redistricting plan submitted by the Carter Petitioners. See Carter v. Chapman, 7 MM 2022. The congressional redistricting plan adopted by the Court was drawn using the original 2020 Census data without prisoner reallocation. This data set is consistent with the Commission’s “Data Set #1.”

But the Commission used “Data Set #2” to generate the Final House Plan. Data Set #2 “reallocates the census data for most in-state prisoners held in state correctional institutions from the district in which the institution is located to the district that was their last known home address prior to incarceration, with exceptions for those in-state prisoners who are serving life sentences or serving minimum sentences that will not expire before April 1, 2030.” See <https://www.redistricting.state.pa.us/commission/article/1079> (last visited March 7, 2022).

The use of Data Set #2 is improper, as it treats voters unequally: this Data Set improperly considers the prior residence of prisoners serving sentences that are set to expire before April 1, 2030, while all other prisoners—and all other registered electors—are assigned a voting district based upon their residence at the time of the census.

The reallocation of voters also distorts the population deviation of the Final House Plan. The Commission has effectively redefined “population” in the term “population equality.” This creates a confusing standard, as congressional population equality must be evaluated using the original Census data set, while the Commission would have this Court evaluate the Final House Plan using the Commission’s contrived data set.

It is well-established that legislative districts are permitted to have greater population deviation than congressional districts (which closely adhere to the one-person, one-vote principal). See Reynolds v. Sims, 377 U.S. 533 (1964); Holt I, 38 A.3d 711 (Pa. 2012). But these cases have never suggested that different population data sets should be used in conducting analyses regarding population equality. The Commission’s Final House Plan pushes right against the “outer limits” of population deviation that might be approved under federal law—9.88% when using the non-adjusted Census data set. The Commission’s suggestion of a lower number, using their contrived data set that “reallocates” certain prisoners, merely confuses the issue.

The Final House Plan fails to achieve anything that approximates population equality. Certainly, countless other plans presented to the Commission come materially closer to achieving that standard. It certainly cannot be said that the Final House Plan creates districts that are “as nearly equal in population as practicable,” as required by the Pennsylvania Constitution. Accordingly, the Final House Plan is contrary to law and the matter must be remanded to the Commission.

II. The Final House Plan is contrary to law because it splits more political subdivisions than are absolutely necessary.

The Pennsylvania Constitution prohibits the division of counties, cities, incorporated towns, boroughs, townships, and wards in forming a representative district “unless absolutely necessary.” PA. CONST. art. II, § 16. The Pennsylvania Constitution “speaks of the ‘integrity’ of political subdivisions, which bespeaks history and geography, not party affiliation or expectations.” Holt v. 2011 Legislative Reapportionment Comm’n, 67 A.3d 1211 (Pa. 2013).

Despite this clear directive, the Final House Plan repeatedly carves up concentrated Democratic areas, combining them with Republican suburbs in an effort to generate additional Democratic seats, including the following:

A. Allentown. With a population of 126,364, this city with a heavy Democratic population could have fit cleanly within two districts. Instead, the Final House Plan divides it into three.

B. Lancaster. With a population of 59,039, this city with a heavy Democratic population could have fit cleanly within a single House district. Instead, the Final House Plan divides it into two Democratic-leaning districts.

C. Berks County. The House districts within Berks County includes several unnecessary splits. Chief among them is a three-way split of the city of Reading, which has a population of 95,112. Reading’s population requires only one split. Instead, the Commission chose to divide it further, drawing out into more suburban and rural communities of interest:

Id.

The additional split of Reading is even more problematic because it dilutes the voting power of a growing Hispanic population in the region. As such, this division violates the recently-adopted amendment to the Pennsylvania Constitution, which provides:

Equality of rights under the law shall not be denied or abridged in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania because of the race or ethnicity of the individual.

PA. CONST. art. I, § 29.

Also within Berks County, Spring Township, with a population of 28,407, is needlessly split. Rather than being used as an anchor for a House district, the split of Spring Township appears designed solely to accommodate the three-way split of Reading. Similarly, the municipality of Cumru (population 15,619) is also split to accommodate the splits of Reading and Spring Township.

The needless division of these municipalities within Berks County amply demonstrates that the Constitutional criteria of minimizing municipal splits was subordinated to extraneous considerations.

D. Harrisburg. With a population of 50,679, our Commonwealth's capital could easily anchor a single district. Instead, the Final House Plan divides it into two Democratic-leaning districts.

E. State College. State College Borough has a population of 40,501. It is the home of Pennsylvania’s flagship public university, Penn State University, and unquestionably constitutes a unique academic community of interest. While common sense and constitutional criteria would call for this borough to remain intact, serving as an anchor for a House district, the Commission split State College into two districts.

F. Lower Paxton

Lower Paxton has a population of 53,501. It is the most populous municipality in Dauphin County. Again, however, the Commission needlessly split a populous municipality. Cutting this municipality in half, the Commission diluted Lower Paxton residents’ electoral power as a community of interest, diminishing those voters’ rights to equal participation in the electoral process.

This district could have easily been paired with West Hanover Township (population 10,697), to create a legislative district with no municipal split (total population 64,198). This house district’s population would be only 145 above the mean, well within the allowable deviation. In conjunction with this move, Susquehanna Township could be included with all of Northern Dauphin County to create a house district with a population of 63,088. This approach would have reduced municipal splits while keeping intact communities of interest.

See <https://davesredistricting.org/maps#viewmap::b0f3bee2-c6a4-40e4-9aa3-d0350f1c86b8> (last visited March 7, 2022).

In the Nordenberg Report, Mr. Nordenberg reports that when dividing political subdivisions, the Commission “generally chose to divide the more populous municipalities, rather than the less populous municipalities.” Nordenberg Report at 47. But this is merely a thinly veiled excuse for partisan gerrymandering. As Mr. Nordenberg acknowledged, less populous communities, “[e]ven when whole ... may struggle to attract the attention of elected officials or to influence elections.” The Commission’s approach further diminishes the influence of smaller communities by increasing the number of districts in which more populous communities—such as Allentown, Lancaster, and Harrisburg—predominate.

Because the Commission split far more political subdivisions than is “absolutely necessary,” the Final House Plan violates the Article II, Section 16 of the Pennsylvania Constitution. Further, the Commission’s selection of which municipalities it split reflects an effort to prioritize partisan considerations over the constitutionally-mandated neutral criteria. As such, the Final House Plan is contrary to law, and the matter must be remanded to the Commission.

III. The Final House Plan is contrary to law because it discriminates on the basis of race or ethnicity.

Under the Pennsylvania Constitution, “[e]quality of rights under the law shall not be denied or abridged in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania because of the race or ethnicity of the individual.” PA. CONST. art. I, § 29. Further, the Pennsylvania Constitution provides that “[n]either the Commonwealth nor any political subdivision thereof shall deny to any person the enjoyment of any civil right, nor discriminate against any person in the exercise of any civil right.” PA. CONST. art. I, § 26; see also PA. CONST. art. I, § 1.

In the Nordenberg Report, Mr. Nordenberg admitted:

When circumstances permitted the Commission to do so, and after ensuring compliance with all aspects of state and federal law, the Commission fashioned districts to create additional opportunities beyond the minimum requirements of the Voting Rights Act, positioning voters in racial and language minority groups to influence the election of candidates of their choice. Going beyond these minimum requirements not only is consistent with the Voting Rights Act, but also is consistent with, and possibly required by, both the Free and Equal Elections Clause and the Racial Ethnic Equality Clause of the Pennsylvania Constitution.

See Nordenberg Report, at 44–45.

The Free and Equal Elections Clause does not provide and has never been interpreted to require—or even allow—legislative reapportionment to create districts based upon voters’ race and language. Moreover, the explicit consideration of race in the creation of any requirement to do so under the Voting Rights Act, violates the Racial Ethnic Equality Clause and Pennsylvania’s equal protection guarantees. Mr. Nordenberg’s admission that the Commission went “beyond” the Voting Rights Act, Nordenberg Report at 44–45, constitutes an admission that the Commission discriminated—e.g., “to distinguish by discerning or exposing differences,” Discriminate, MERRIAM-WEBSTER DICTIONARY (online ed. 2022)—against Pennsylvanians in the exercise of their civil right to vote.

“[C]ourts may not order the creation of majority-minority districts unless necessary to remedy a violation of federal law.” Voinovich v. Quilter, 507 U.S. 146, 156 (1993). Three threshold elements, must first be proven: (1) the relevant minority group must be “sufficiently large and geographically compact to constitute a majority’ in some reasonably configured legislative district”; (2) the relevant minority group must be “politically cohesive,” and (3) the “district’s white majority ... ‘vote[s] sufficiently as a bloc’ to usually ‘defeat the minority’s preferred candidate.’” Cooper v. Harris, 137 S. Ct. 1455, 1470 (2017) (quoting Thornburg v. Gingles, 478 U.S. 30 (1986)).

Absent sufficient evidence to satisfy each of the Gingles factors for each proposed minority opportunity district, the Final House Plan constitutes an unconstitutional racial gerrymander in violation of the Free and Equal Elections Clause, the Racial Ethnic Equality Clause, and Pennsylvania’s equal protection guarantees.

But this evidence is missing with respect to the Final House Plan. The expert report of Matthew Barreto, Ph.D.—relied upon by the Commission—fails to show the existence of legally significant racially polarized voting. See Jan. 14, 2022 LRC Hearing at 1:53, available at: <http://aws.redistricting.state.pa.us/Redistricting/Resources/Video/11422-LRC-2.mp4> (last visited Mar. 7, 2022). Dr. Barreto failed to demonstrate that all three Gingles elements were satisfied in any corner of the Commonwealth. And the Professor Jonathan Katz issued a report concluding that Dr. Barreto’s analysis was so “statistically flawed” that “no scientifically valid inferences may be drawn from it.” See Jonathan Katz Report dated Jan. 14, 2022 (provided to the Commission at the hearing on January 14, 2022).

The lack of competent evidence to support the Commission’s extensive prioritization of race in the preparation of the Final House Plan renders it contrary to law. There is no support under the Free and Equal Elections Clause or the Racial Ethnic Equality Clause for the Committee’s approach that “more is always better” when it comes to the creation of minority opportunity districts. The Final House Plan thus constitutes an unconstitutional racial gerrymander and must be remanded.

IV. The Final House Plan is contrary to law because it expressly incorporates partisan considerations.

Under the guise of “respecting democratic ideals,” the Commission misinterprets this Court’s decision in LWV and engaged in partisan gerrymandering by another name.

In LWV, this Court sought to protect against the ills of partisan gerrymandering—which it defined as the “dilut[ion of] votes of those who in prior elections voted for the party not in power to give the party in power a lasting electoral advantage.” LWV, 178 A.3d at 814. But in light of the constitutional mandate that legislative reapportionment be performed by the Commission, there should be no concern about partisan gerrymandering: the “party in power” does not draw the legislative maps. For legislative reapportionment plans, there is no ill to protect against: because a Commission draws the plans, there is no risk that a party is artificially entrenching its power in the manner by deliberately drawing lines in a manner to render certain votes nugatory. Id. at 814.

But the Commission did not stop at merely attempting to protect against non-existent ills of partisan gerrymandering of legislative maps. Instead, the Commission expressly sought to achieve a particular partisan allocation. This objective should have no place in legislative redistricting.

In LWV, this Court considered the “partisan bias”—as measured by the mean-median score and the efficiency gap—of the 2011 Congressional Plan to determine the extent to which partisan gerrymandering subordinated the neutral criteria set forth in Article II, Section 16 of the Pennsylvania Constitution. See LWV, 178 A.3d at 770–77. But it did not consider such metrics for the purpose of targeting a particular partisan allocation of seats. Nor did this Court mandate a particular target of “responsiveness,” i.e., the number of seats won by a party relative to its at-large vote share.

With the Final House Plan, the Commission did exactly that, running afoul of both the letter and spirit of LWV. The Nordenberg Report makes a dozen references to “PlanScore,” a website maintained by the Campaign Legal Center. See PlanScore, <https://planscore.campaignlegal.org/#!2020-ushouse> (last visited March 7, 2022). In his Report, Mr. Nordenberg boasts of the Commission’s efforts to reduce the Final House Plan’s “partisan bias” as measured by PlanScore. See Nordenberg Report at 68–70. But this metric merely measures how close a plan is expected to produce proportional representation: it explicitly measures “the difference between each party’s seat share and 50% in a hypothetical, perfectly tied election”; “[t]he difference between each party’s seat share and 50%” is what PlanScore defines as “partisan bias.” See <https://planscore.campaignlegal.org/#!2020-ushouse>.

Of course, there is no constitutional right to proportional representation. Indeed, the United States Supreme Court expressly rejected such a notion. See Rucho v. Common Cause, 139 S. Ct. 2484, 2499 (2019) (“The Founders certainly did not think proportional representation was required”); Holt II, 67 A.3d at 1236 (holding that the Court “need not credit” arguments that a plan resulted in one party’s “dominance out of proportion to party registration and party voting patterns in the Commonwealth”); accord Davis v. Bandemer, 478 U.S. 109, 139 (1986). And, moreover, there is no constitutionally manageable standard by which this Court could evaluate claims regarding “how much representation particular political parties deserve—based on the votes of their supporters—and to rearrange the challenged districts to achieve that end.” Rucho, 139 S. Ct. at 2499; accord Johnson v. Wis. Elections Comm’n, 399 Wis. 2d 623, 649 (Wis. 2021) (quoting Rucho and Vieth v. Jubelirer, 541 U.S. 267 (2004), and declining to consider the partisan makeup of districts in crafting judicial remedies in the event of a legislative impasse).

The Commission’s efforts to modify the partisan metrics of the Final House Plan as measured by PlanScore misconstrues this Court’s decision in LWV. It is, instead, aiming to achieve a rough form of proportionality, despite their being no constitutional support for such a goal. The Commission’s efforts to change the partisan makeup of the Final House Plan—even to achieve what it views as a better “PlanScore”—is the essence of partisan gerrymandering: allocating voters to districts to achieve a particular partisan outcome. See LWV, 178 A.3d at 814.

Partisan considerations should play no part in the Commission’s task of reapportioning legislative districts, and the Commission’s express incorporation of these considerations in its decision-making process violates the Free and Equal Elections Clause. See id. This Court recognized that under the Free and Equal Elections Clause, partisan gerrymandering “is the antithesis of a healthy representative democracy.” Id. By expressly aiming to achieve “improved” scores on various partisan metrics, the Commission’s Final House Plan violates the Free and Equal Elections Clause, is contrary to law, and thus cannot be utilized.

V. Incorporation of Objections Raised in Other Appeals.

Petitioner incorporates by reference all objections raised in the Petition for Review and supporting brief filed by Representative Benninghoff (see 11 MM 2022) as if same were set forth at length herein.

CONCLUSION

For the reasons set forth above, Petitioner respectfully requests that this Honorable Court determine that the Final House Plan is contrary to law, specifically (i) Article, Section 5; (ii) Article II, Section 16; (iii) Article I, Section 26; and (iv) Article I, Section 29 of the Pennsylvania Constitution. Petitioner further requests that this Court remand the Final House Plan to the Commission to:

- a. Reduce the total population deviation in the Final House Plan, as measured using the original 2020 Census data set;
- b. Reduce the partisan imbalance of incumbent pairings in the Final House Plan;
- c. Eliminate unnecessary splits of larger political subdivisions;
- d. Prohibit the consideration of race in drawing legislative district lines except where required under the Voting Rights Act; and
- e. Prohibit the consideration of partisan metrics in drawing legislative district lines.
